VILLA'S DEATH A MYTH

General Bell Informs General Funston of His Opinion That Report Was Manufactured at Juarez.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Camp of General Pershing at the Front, April 17, by Motor and Wireless to Columbus, N. M., April 18.—
The American pursuit of Villa is at a standstill because of the unprovoked attack upon American cavalrymen by the insubordinate soldiers of the Carranza garrison at Parral. At General Pershing's headquarters there seems no prospect of resumption of the chase while there were numerous indications that a continuance of the pursuit would meet with armed resistance.

Americans Fired Upon.
A small party of American officers was fired upon near here last night, none of the Americans being injured.
This coming on the heels of other reports of shooting, is responsible for the belief that the expeditionary command is confronted with a serious problem.

A report received here from Carranza sources that a Villa colonel captured near Cusimulachi had promised to lead a party to a grave in which Villa was said to have been buried last Friday. This generally discredited by military authorities here.
Newspapers published in Chihuahua reached here today containing reports of the attack upon the command of Major Frank Thompson at Parral. According to these, Americans were encamped in the Plaza de San Juan when, despite efforts of the Carranza officials, the Mexican populace attacked them with firearms, whereupon the cavalrymen fought back.

The affair was described as being a reprisal of the Americans, since they retired finally to La Mota.

No Friction With Carranza.

The newspapers pointed out that despite the unfortunate occurrence there was no friction between the American command and Carranza authorities.
In Parral, both of who were working to establish permanent relations. Reports, reaching here today from Carranza sources said that a constitutional force was being organized under General Larrangas within a few miles of this camp two nights ago, two Carranza soldiers and one Villa bandit being killed. It was a detachment of Carranza's force that attacked General Pershing's escort train near here Tuesday night.

Villa's Death a Myth.
San Antonio, April 18.—General
Bell, reporting from El Paso to General Pershing, gave it as his opinion after a thorough investigation as he could make, that the report of Villa's death had been manufactured in the Carranza headquarters. General Bell, who said he had been in communication with Carranza's chief staff, also has failed to verify the report.

Concentrate U. S. Force.

El Paso, April 18.—Reports received here today from Mexico indicate that the American advance detachments have been recalled by General Pershing and that the expeditionary force was being concentrated in three places: at El Paso, at Juarez, and at the main column near Namiagua and a third division at Colonia Dublan.

These reports also stated that the Parral fighting had a most unfortunate effect on people of northern Mexico, and had greatly inflamed the anti-American feeling. The Parral incident, it was said, had been magnified by anti-American propaganda into a great battle in which the Americans were badly beaten.

Pershing's Train Fired On.

Columbus, April 18.—A speedy motor train carrying General Pershing, together with his escort, was fired upon during a drive made at night from El Paso to the wireless station at Namiagua, according to unconfirmed reports received here.

No Change in Policy.

Washington, April 18.—President Wilson and the cabinet went over the Mexican situation again fully at the meeting today and afterward it was announced that there was no change in the situation nor in the American government's policy.

Seize Arms of Carranza.

El Paso, Texas, April 18.—A car of arms and ammunition arriving here and consigned to Mexico, was seized by United States military authorities and an investigation as to its ultimate destination.

PAINTER OF ROYALTY

SUICIDE IN CHICAGO

Italian Artist Who Was Famed in Europe Ends His Own Life Result of Despondency.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, April 18.—Despondency is believed to have been the cause of self-destruction in a shabby studio on the north side here today of Francis D.
Cavallaro, a painter, one widely known abroad. Cavallaro was sixty-six years old. He was reported to have been honored by European royalty and his paintings adorn many churches and theatres, principally in Europe.
According to newspaper clippings found in his room, the artist at one time was the honored guest at a reception in London given by the Italian ambassador, when Cavallaro was portrait of the king of Italy was undergoing. Growing age and despondency made him despondent.
This and the suicide of a friend recently are believed to have led him to kill himself.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, April 18.—French positions at Steinbruch, 700 yards south of Haudmont, in the Verdun region, were captured by the Germans in the attack of yesterday, the war office announced today. The Germans took prisoners to the number of 1,646 un-wounded men.

Shell First Line Trenches.

Paris, April 18.—French first line trenches in the Verdun region west of the Meuse from Dead Man's Hill to Cunieres, were bombarded yesterday by the Germans. East of the river relative calm prevails.

The American hospital train recently presented to the French army arrived in Paris yesterday on its first trip to the front, bringing a number of soldiers wounded in the recent fighting at Verdun.

Raid By French Airships.

Saloniki, April 17, via Paris, April 18.—Twenty-two French aeroplanes bombed the headquarters of the Bulgarian staff at Dolin at three o'clock this morning. The raid was an entire success, the French officers say.
A German squad which attempted to engage the bombers by special rapid firing machines, which forced them to abandon the attack.

Turkish Statement.

Constantinople, via London, April 18.—A Turkish official statement says:
"Trak front: Situation unchanged."
"Caucasian front: In the valley of Tchoruk and on our left wing there was local fighting. In the other sections of the front the situation was unchanged."

"On April 14 an enemy aeroplane coming from the direction of Enos, Gallipoli, flew over Adrianople, dropping two bombs without effect. In the neighborhood of Suez one of our reconnaissance parties attacked an enemy detachment and put it to flight after killing five men."

British Forced Back.

London, April 18.—The British lines on the south bank of the Tigris, in Mesopotamia, has been forced back by the Turks, now over Adrianople, in places of from 500 to 800 yards, according to an official statement given out today by the official press bureau.

Judge Fehndt Makes Ruling In Favor of Janesville Man, President of Home Rule League.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, April 18.—Judge John Feh-ndt today quashed the indictment against the Home Rule and Taxpayers' League, charging Charles E. Pierce of Janesville, one of the officers, with violating the corrupt practices act, in failing to file reports of campaign expenses.

Before this action was taken, District Attorney Harry S. Coffey consented to a slight amendment in the information of the indictment. T. C. Richmond, an official of the league, then made a motion to quash the indictment. It was granted. This action will make it possible to appeal the case.

District Attorney Santoff said he would file his motion of appeal tomorrow in order to have the case settled before the supreme court adjourns this summer.

WIFEY NUMBER TWO

ing Woman Within a Year After His Divorce.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Appleton, April 18.—A warrant was issued today for arrest of John E.
Johnson, charging him with marrying a woman, on account of being married within a year after getting a divorce. Through a matrimonial agency of life No. 2 got into communication with John E. Johnson. When he came here to call on her, she thought she had carried the joke too far, and confessed to an aunt, Mattie Lammeman, widow. She said she would receive him and the call ended in courtship and marriage last fall.

Since then he has not worked.
According to relatives he has been trying to get her to sell her city property and purchase a farm in his name.
This action led Herbert Wing, a brother of wife No. 2, having a warrant served on him. Wife No. 1 is Lillian B. Johnson of Sheboygan, Wis. She obtained a divorce in the spring.

La Crosse, April 18.—Wm. Smith, a young son of Frank Smith, a prominent business man of La Crosse, today, accidentally shot and killed his eight-year-old brother, Morris, with a 22 calibre rifle.
Guy Smith, 21, an older brother, after returning from a hunting trip, placed the rifle in a cabinet without unloading it. Willie selected the weapon from a number of others and while carelessly handling the weapon and not knowing it was loaded, pulled the trigger. The bullet went through Morris' head, killing him instantly.
The Smiths, who had resided in La Crosse during the winter, were planning to return to their summer home at La Crosse in a few days, in order that their children might derive some advantage from living in the country.

German Ambassador Calls on Secretary Lansing to Discuss General Phases of Note's Subject Matter.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, April 18.—The cabinet discussion of the submarine crisis today resulted in no change in the situation and it was announced nothing had come up to prevent the dispatch of the American note to Germany, as planned, probably tonight or tomorrow.

Count Von Bernstorff's engagement to discuss the situation with Secretary Lansing in general terms late this afternoon, it was indicated, will not delay the sending of the note.

Bernstorff in Conference.
Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, acting under instructions from his government, will discuss the submarine crisis in general terms with Secretary Lansing at four o'clock this afternoon.

It was understood the ambassador has no instructions to discuss any specific phase now in controversy between the two governments, but to take up the subject broadly and to seek the viewpoint of the American government in the present situation.

There were some indications today that Ambassador Gerard had been informed by the Berlin foreign office of his desire to meet the wishes of the United States if it is shown that the channel steamer Sussex was destroyed by a submarine in violation of the German government's instructions, and that Count Von Bernstorff was authorized to make such a statement in general terms to Secretary Lansing.

Put Note into Code.

Secretary Lansing and President Wilson conferred early today on the communication to Germany on submarine warfare, which the president completed last night.

The communication, which is designed as the last word of this government in the submarine controversy, was being put into diplomatic code today for American transmission to Berlin.

The document is said to be the most rigorous diplomatic paper President Wilson and Secretary Lansing ever have drafted.

Russian Bark Torpedoed.

Schwanden, which left Genoa, Scotland, March 23, for Mobile, Ala., has been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine. The crew was saved.

Sunk Without Warning.

London, April 18.—An announcement was issued by the admiralty today corroborating the previous unofficial statement that the British steamship Zent, sunk early this month, was torpedoed without warning. The statement is as follows:
The British steamer Zent, unarmed, was sunk by a torpedo from a submarine on April 5, without any warning whatever. She never saw the submarine. She sank in a very few minutes, and consequently forty-nine lives were lost.

Press dispatches at the time said fifty men lost their lives. Ten were landed at Queenstown.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Bedford, R. I., April 18.—A search of the wreckage resulting from the rear end collision of two trains on New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad here last night, was still in progress today in an effort to determine whether it contained any bodies.
In addition to five persons known to have been on the train, there was the opinion of many persons who had been at the scene during the night that at least three other passengers had been unable to extricate themselves from the burning mass. More than thirty other persons were injured. Most of them suffering from cuts and bruises or shock.

All the victims were occupants of the rear car of a local train which started to run on a siding in front of the Bedford station when the gilt edge express from Boston crashed into it.
Coals from express locomotive and explosion of gas tanks set fire to the wreckage and the flames spread so rapidly the nearby station and freight house were destroyed together with four wooden coaches of the local train. The victims were kept prisoners at the place by a negro.

TO BE CHARGED WITH CON-SPIRACY TO BLOW UP CANAL.

PUTS UP A GAME FIGHT

Resists Arrest by Federal Officers in Wall Street Office and Then Claims His Arrest is Illegal.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, April 18.—Wolfe Von Igle, secretary of Franz Von Papen, former military attache to the German embassy, was arrested here today in Captain Von Papen's former office at 60 Wall Street, after a fight with four agents of the department of justice. Von Igle is the fifth man indicted yesterday with Von Papen, charged with conspiracy to blow up the Welland Canal.

Resists Arrest.
Von Igle's name had been withheld by federal authorities, pending his arrest. When the four agents of the department of justice entered his office today, he put up a fight in which he was assisted by George Von Skull, an employee.

Von Igle, before he was overpowered, succeeded in reaching a safe in a far corner of the room, banging the door shut and turning the combination.
He was not subdued until the federal agents said, until they pointed revolvers at him. He then declared he was on German territory and protested the United States authorities had no right to invade that territory.

"Go ahead and shoot," his captors replied as he said, "It will only cause war between the United States and Germany. You have no right to invade this office. It is German territory. These are Russian methods."

Claims Arrest Illegal.

Von Igle made a similar statement when arraigned later before Judge Hoff. Lacking a lawyer, he was taken to the county jail. His arraignment would be postponed until a lawyer plea that he had been illegally arrested, could be formally entered.

Von Igle was detained in the federal building in the meantime, in the custody of the federal officers.

According to Assistant United States Attorney Wood, Von Igle has been in charge of Von Papen's office since the arrest of Von Papen. He has paid at the rate of $235 per month through Knauch, Nachod & Kuhne, bankers.

Show Von Papen's Complicity.

Prosecutor Wood, following Von Igle's arrest, made public fac simile copies of letters and checks which he asserts prove conclusively that Von Papen's complicity in plot to destroy the Welland canal.

The letter is dated September 5, 1914, and is written to the attorney of Captain H. Tauscher, representative of Krupp's in this country, and husband of Madame Gaski, the opera singer, who was among those indicted yesterday.

Addressed to the local offices of the E. I. Dupont de Nemours Powder company, and signed by Tauscher, the letter reads:

"According to my telephone conversation of yesterday with your son, Clark, will you please deliver to bearer, Bridgeman Taylor, the 300 pounds of high dynamite and send invoice to my above address for payment after delivery."

Check Signed By Attache.

This is the dynamite which, it is alleged, was taken to Niagara Falls by the men concerned in the plot for the blowing up of the waterway.

The check bears the signature of
"Von Papen," is dated September 1,

Submarine Wonders of Hawaii.
Nowhere in this wide world are there such rainbow fish as in Hawaii. Of every color and shade and hue. If there is any tint or grandeur of tints in the prism that is not reflected in the scales of the many tribes in the waters around the islands I should like to see it. A visit to the Honolulu aquarium (far superior as it is to the world famous one in Naples), or to the Coral gardens, where we see the fish through a glass bottomed boat, disporting themselves in their own front yards, so to speak, is well worth while. —Christian Herald.

SELFISH LIVING IS SCORED BY BRIGHAM

ALL THAT WE OWN BELONGS TO OUR CREATOR, DECLARED BRIGHAM IN MONDAY SERMON.

RAPS WASTE OF TIME

Places of Amusement Take Too Many Hours Which Might Be Turned to Better Advantage.

The question of whether a person has a right to do what he wishes with his own, was the basis of the topic taken by Rev. Brigham in his sermon last evening at the Lenten meetings. It was a sharp rap at those who live only for themselves.

Attendance constantly increased, being much larger than last Monday. Another interesting sermon will be delivered tonight, Wednesday night is Mothers' and Daughters' night, Thursday is Fathers' and Sons' night. Not that the meetings will be confined to the guests of the evening, but a section of seats will be reserved for them on these particular nights.

The finest chorus ever heard in Janesville, has been said many times in praise of the large chorus choir which Director Frank Doane presents each evening of the meetings. One can hear the choir sing in the evening in addition to numbers by the chorus, Mrs. J. R. Nichols sang, "The Rose of Sharon," in a very touching manner.

Particular attention was called to the morning prayer at ten o'clock each morning and the men's meeting from 11:50 to 12:15 noon in Room 506 Jackson building.

A resume of Rev. Brigham's address last evening:

"Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with my own?" Matt. 20.

"It would appear that the complaints in this particular labor dispute had good grounds for their dissatisfaction. If there is one thing more than another that breeds unrest and dissatisfaction, it is apparent injustice. These men had labored through the heat of a long summer day, and they passed by the paymaster's window every man with his money contained the same. They were at once aroused and complained bitterly of the injustice and that the results of that day's labor had been fairly distributed. The reply of the employer is characteristic. He reminds them that they had bargained with him for the day's wage; that he had paid them according to their morning agreement; that he had been absolutely just with them, and what undertake they to wish to pay others more?"

"He said, 'It is not lawful for mine own,' said he, 'to do what I will with mine own?' Strangely modern these words sound. Strangely like the answer of many an employer in modern labor disputes. Two in many other phases of our every day life, and it raises one of the fundamental issues between men and men, and men and God."

"It is not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own?" Not always. "You have heard the same in other departments of life. One of the most serious charges against the modern amusement craze is its fearful waste of time. This is not an amusement mad. Enough time is wasted at the nickel show and the bridge whist table to develop a race of literary giants where now we have a generation that cannot spend an hour in conversation without being bored. But when men and women do undertake things greatly worth while and that shall decide the destiny of the race, they say, 'Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own?'"

"Our talents, our gifts, our personalities, how about these? May we not do with these as we will? Not if we follow the Christ."

"In the light of his teaching all we have and all we are belong to the Creator. We may not do as we please even with our own unless we please to do his will. We are stewards, entrusted with time and abilities, and they have been given us to use for others, and we have no right to use them selfishly or neglect them. We have the ability to make money. It belongs to God and the money we make belongs to God. We have the ability to save. I believe to God, and if we are true it must be used for his glory and not for our selfish pleasure."

"Men who are rejecting Christ and living in sin say as it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own?"

"No, it is not! 'You have been bought with a price,' redeemed, not with corruptible things such as silver and gold, but with the precious blood of the Lamb."

"You will remember the scene in 'Les Miserables' when Jean Valjean is brought back to the bishop's house with the stolen plate and the bishop greets him."

"Ah! there you are," he said, looking at Jean Valjean. "I am glad to see you. Why, I gave you the candlesticks too, which are also silver, and will fetch you 200 francs. Why did you not take them away with the rest of the plate?"

Jean Valjean opened his eyes and looked at the bishop with an expression which no human language could describe.

"Monsieur," the corporal said, "what this told you was true then? We met him, and as he looked as if he were running away, we arrested him. He had this plate."

"And he told you, the bishop interrupted, that I am at liberty to give to him by an old priest whose house he passed the night? I see it all. And you brought him back here? That is a mistake."

"That case," the corporal continued, "we can let him go."

"Of course," the bishop answered. "The gendarmes loosed their hold on Jean Valjean, who fled back to his room. He had this plate."

"He went to the mantelpiece, fetched the two candlesticks and handed them to Jean Valjean. The two females watched him do so without a word, without a sign, without a look that could disturb the bishop. Jean Valjean was trembling in all his limbs; the two candlesticks mechanically, and with wondering looks."

"Now," said the bishop, "go in peace. By the bye, when you return, my friend, it is unnecessary to pass through the garden, for you can always enter, day and night, through the front door, which is only latched. Then, turning to the gendarmes, he said:

"Gentlemen, you can retire."

"They did so. Jean Valjean looked down at the plate and the candlesticks. The bishop walked up to him and said in a low voice:

"Never forget that you have promised me to employ this money in becoming an honest man."

Jean Valjean, who had no recollection of having promised anything, stood silent. The bishop, who had laid a stress on these words, continued, solemnly:

"No longer belong to evil, but to good. I have bought your soul of you. I withdraw it from dark thoughts and the spirit of perdition, and give it to God."

"So, my brother, Jesus Christ has brought you back by his death on the cross and calls you his Passion and sin but no longer in selfishness and service and self-sacrifice for his children."

H. S. GIRL DEBATORS IN CONTESTS TODAY

Affirmative Team Met Edgerton Here This Afternoon and Negatives Went to Fort Atkinson.

The girls' affirmative debating team at the high school met the Edgerton team at the high school this afternoon at four o'clock and the negative team went to Fort Atkinson, where they will meet the Fort affirmative team tonight. Both teams will debate the same subject, Resolved, that the minimum wage should be adopted in the state of Wisconsin. Manilla Powers, Constance Cunningham and Clara Gosland make up the affirmative trio and Constance Allison, Ruth Campa and Lillian Spohn are on the negative side.

The judges for the debate here this afternoon were Professor Barber and English of Milton college, and Prof. Norton of the University of Wisconsin.

CHICAGO MAN FINED FOR SPEEDING TODAY

A. R. Slade Pays Ten Dollars and Costs for Speeding on North Washington Street.

A. R. Slade of Chicago, was going through Janesville this morning, Slade had a little bad luck with his Fliver, having two blow-outs en route from Chicago to Madison, his business destination. He was in a hurry. Up North Washington street he was making up his lost time and he failed to notice a motorcycle come tearing up the street behind him. In Chicago he was used to seeing a neatly uniformed officer, riding on a motorcycle, but he, like the others, always knew enough to slow down at the critical moment.

Slade, in his nine years of experience, never saw a "detective" motorcycle regulation uniform. Consequently he did not know Officer Cain as he was "beating it" out Washington street at an alleged rate of thirty-one miles per hour when he was pinched.

In court Slade expressed a doubt that a Fliver could go thirty-one miles per hour, but the officer stated that was the mark his speedometer registered when he caught up to the Chicago man. Slade pleaded guilty and paid a fine of ten dollars and costs.

Thomas Heffernan was the only person to be arraigned for drunkenness in Mendelsohn Hall. He pleaded guilty to a second offense complaint. The case, however, did not wish to sentence Heffernan until Wednesday morning at ten o'clock. The defendant was committed to the county jail to ponder on what the court was going to hand him for his repeated offenses.

DISCUSSION GROUP AT "Y" WILL MEET

Employed Boys Hold Interesting Discussion Meetings Every Week.—Other Clubs Will Meet.

Ten members of the Young Men's Christian Association in the employed boys' division have been holding meetings for the past five weeks, which have been very successful. A regular course of study is being followed out and some of the live topics of the day are discussed.

Under the economic studies the following topics are talked over: the necessity for daily work; the dignity of labor; the satisfaction of being a productive person; the sin of being idle and non-productive; the need of better distribution of the necessities of life; the consumption of money; the difficulty of finding joy in our daily work, and the interdependence of all men.

In the social studies, the individual and the community, the family, the basic unit of society; democracy a community ideal; Christianity a social and character; poverty, its misery and relief; respect for law and order, and the meaning of the Kingdom of God, are the topics discussed.

This group will hold their regular meeting tomorrow night. A bean supper will be served in the kitchen at six-fifteen o'clock.

Treasure Hunt: On Saturday a new form of outdoor amusement for Y. M. C. A. boys will take place. This will be a treasure hunt in the morning all who expect to go will meet at the "Y" and there a letter of instructions will be given them. At the end of the hunt, if there are successful, they will find a prize. The hunt will take all day and dinner will be cooked out in the woods.

Out of Town Attorneys: Out of town attorneys who were in this city on Monday were: H. W. Adams and Owen Rutland of Beloit; P. L. Jones of Evansville; Frank Jenks and Ray Sprague of Broadhead, and Attorney Fiedler of Mineral Point.

SURPRISED BY FRIENDS IN HONOR OF BIRTHDAY

Mr. Hess was pleasantly surprised by twenty of his young friends at his home on North Franklin street Saturday evening, the occasion being in honor of his birthday. Music and games furnished the entertainment for the evening. At midnight delicious refreshments were served, and in accordance with Leap year custom, the young men did the serving, the waiters being Michael Mulligan and James Doran. At a late hour the young people departed, after having enjoyed a pleasant evening, wishing the host many happy returns of the day.

How Physiologists Regard Coffee

In a recent article, Dr. W. A. Evans, editor of the "How to Keep Well" column of the Chicago Tribune, says:

"In order that no misunderstanding may arise, I should say that physiologists regard Coffee, Tea, Tobacco and Whiskey as drugs in the same sense as Opium and Cocaine are. From coffee at one end of the line to cocaine at the other, no pot has the right to call the kettle black."

The average cup of coffee contains about 2 1/2 grains of caffeine, a habit-forming drug—not enough in one cup to seriously harm. But, when used regularly, it is for many the cause of sleeplessness, nervousness, heart trouble, mental and physical fatigue, and a host of other complaints.

on the other hand, is a pure food-drink made of roasted wheat and a little molasses. It tastes much like coffee, but contains no caffeine nor other injurious drug.

Postum comes in two forms: The original Postum Cereal, which must be boiled; 15c and 25c packages; and Instant Postum, a soluble form that produces the beverage instantly—a level teaspoonful to a cup of hot water; 30c and 50c tins. Both forms are equally delicious, and the cost is about the same—one-half cent per cup.

Even a ten-day trial will place the average person far enough away from coffee troubles to prove

DEMONSTRATION IN ALFALFA GROWING

L. F. Graeber, Secretary of Wisconsin Alfalfa Order, to Come to Rock County.

One of the crops that the farmers of Rock county are contemplating planting this season to make up for a possible loss of corn by reason of a late season for seed purposes, is alfalfa. Rock county has been behind the alfalfa counties in the acreage of this valuable asset to the feeding department of stock farms, having had but seven hundred acres last year while Walworth had fifteen hundred, Jefferson twenty-two hundred and Green twenty-three hundred.

In connection with the farm management contest L. F. Graeber, secretary of the Wisconsin Alfalfa Order, has been invited to come to Rock county to give free demonstrations of the planting, care and harvest of this crop. It is planned that where fifteen farmers in any adjacent community desire such a demonstration, one will be arranged for. The first demonstration will be given on the Dougan farm near Beloit on May 23.

KELLY POOL—Whose Turn to Buy? By BRIGGS

"Tux" is the genial smoke! There's vim and punch and get-there energy in every fragrant puff. Get the bustling, hustling spirit of "Tux" into your system and it'll give you an outlook on life fresh as a morning glory at 5 a. m.

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

A whole lot of men at one time or another have tried to smoke a pipe—and used the wrong tobacco. Result—a hot tongue and "cold feet." Try again with the right tobacco—Tuxedo!

Tuxedo has made thousands of happy, contented pipe-smokers because it's so wonderfully mild and cannot burn, bite or blister the tongue or irritate the throat.

The rich, sun-ripened leaf for Tuxedo is aged 3 to 5 years. Then it's treated by the original "Tuxedo Process"—a doctor's discovery—which removes every particle of bite. There are many so-called processes—all are imitations of the "Tuxedo Process"—none has ever even approached the "Tuxedo Process" in making tobacco leaf mild and wholesome.

Try Tuxedo for a week and learn what it means to love your pipe.

THE IMPRESSION.

It is wonderful to read the impression that has gone forth relative to the recent Wisconsin primaries and the semi-reputation of the much-touted "Wisconsin Idea" throughout the country. In speaking of the situation the Christian Science Monitor says:

"The divided verdict on the candidacy of Senator La Follette by the Wisconsin voters is significant, especially when it is recalled how long and how securely he held control of his party, and of the state, and how prominent a place he filled in national politics ten years ago. He will come into the republican national convention with some votes on the early ballots, garnered in states where the political reaction has not been so marked as in Wisconsin. But, like other men in the senate who are non-partisan in the running for the presidential nomination, he does not appeal to the nation at this juncture of history."

"One result of the primaries held to date is so clear that it may work against their perpetuation. Voters have not resorted to them in any such numbers as to indicate that public opinion favors the new method of choice. If they are to be tried four years hence it must be because the results of this campaign justify retention of the plan. Time will tell. Certainly the civic expense involved in the extra poll will not be tolerated unless political results justify the cost."

The returns from the presidential primaries, in the middle west, of the United States show such mixed results that it is with difficulty that an observer essays the task of interpreting them," says the same paper. "The defeat by Henry Ford of an experienced politician and popular party leader in the Michigan elections undoubtedly registers the personal popularity of the Detroit employer of industry. He has set a standard in industrial relations which has made him conspicuous and also liked by the wage earners, so that they would be likely to prefer him. On the other hand, it is impossible to read the returns without assuming that victory was due in part to voters' agreement with Mr. Ford on the 'preparedness' issue. Michigan is within that belt of the country where citizens are fond of a state of agitation lest Europe or Asia invade the land. It has large mining and manufacturing industries, but nevertheless it is still an agricultural state; and its land-owning and land-working population, as in Kansas and Iowa, is not at all militaristic in its ideals. So that, to a far greater extent than would have been predicted prior to the primaries, the people voted for a man who is not an opportunist on the subject. Opposing all war, he does not make an exception for his own country when it appears to be drawn near the vortex."

EASTER FASHIONS.

Popular festivals always give indications of human nature. It is interesting to compare ancient observances of Easter with modern celebrations. One can form impressions whether amid changing manners, human nature has really changed.

In some of our cathedrals, we read church dignitaries used to play a kind of solemn and symbolical game of ball. Grave and rhythmic dances were common. In some places there were farcical exhibitions and the clergy told jokes from the pulpit. All of which was supposed to express Easter joy.

As one today looks over the parade of spring hats and gowns in any large city, there is great evidence of superficial refinement. But this elaborate dressing appeals to something in human nature quite as primitive and barbaric as anything that used to come out.

As respects music, the modern Easter has reached a higher level. Of course there are many composers of church anthems who write about the same stuff for such an occasion as they would for the operatic stage. If you shut your eyes, you could imagine yourself in an orchestra seat, while the tenor and soprano warble before the footlights. Usually you cannot understand the words in either case. The only difference is that sacred words are set to jiggly and sentimental tunes.

But as singers study with good teachers, they come to be more discriminating. They feel that music is a form of language, with an alphabet expressing every aspect of emotion. They want a composition to express the sentiment of the words and the occasion. The majority of the Easter music heard today conforms to this higher ideal of dignity.

It does not require grand diapasons or highly paid soloists to express these ideals of worship. The little church at the country cross roads, or the chapel in the slums, may catch the spirit better than the echoing auditorium and the fashionable audience.

LUMBER COSTS.

This is a time of year when timber lands in most of the states are as dry as a bone. They are a perfect tinder box for the locomotive spark or the camper's fire.

When people build houses they complain bitterly about the high cost of wood material. A principal cause of this cost is the frequency of forest fires. The same man who kicks most strenuously over the building contractor's bill, may go on some fishing trip and throw away a match into a pile of dead leaves.

The uncertainty of woodland property has led to the feeling that it is an undesirable form of investment. It costs so much to insure woodlands that few owners try to cover it. Even if the tract is located in some very remote place, there is still a risk which owners hate to take. They therefore cut off their trees before they are ripe. They slaughter the young growth so that nothing is coming along for the future. If the land can possibly be made available for any other purpose, they so utilize it. Thus the timber area is fast shrinking.

Public sentiment should support strict laws controlling these hazards. The farmer who would like to see young brush grow up into timber should be given some protection for it. In many states serious fires are now largely prevented by watch towers, from which fire scouts can detect a blaze when it first starts and telephone local fire wardens or rangers. The secret of successful forest fighting is just the same as for town fire fighting. It is to get to the spot before the fire has great headway.

Every man who enters a woodland tract on a fishing or hunting trip or for any other purpose, should realize that he is a fire peril. He is a guest in one of the nation's storehouses of wealth. His thoughtless act may consume millions worth of property, and contribute toward the expense of living and doing business.

THE STRAW VOTE.

The Nation has been conducting a somewhat extensive straw vote with results that are decidedly gratifying to republicans. This vote shows that, as compared with 1912, Wilson has lost 25 per cent of the 1,644 voters who voted for him before, that the Roosevelt vote of 1912 has fallen off 25 per cent, while the number of those who signify their purpose to vote for some republican is greater than that of the number who voted the republican ticket four years ago. The total number of ballots cast in the Nation's vote was upwards of 3,000. Other straw votes held by certain eastern dailies indicate even greater increases in the number determined this year to vote the republican ticket. Irrespective of whom the convention may nominate, Nor is this change of sentiment confined to any one section of the country. There is wide diversity of choice of candidates but the one point on which the great majority of the voters are agreed is that they have had enough of democratic administration.

Everyone gives his own party the credit for the growth of the country but when this growth cuts up the cattle ranges and makes hides scarce, and meat and leather products high, of course the other party is responsible.

Competition is said to be the way to raise the boys' ambition, but so far they remain philosophically indifferent to the glorious renown of raising the first green peas of the season.

After carefully looking to see that no political reporter is listening at the keyhole, Justice Hughes ventures to assert that it is safe to eat oysters in April.

The price of soap in Mexico is 60 cents a cake. This must be an exception to the law that the price falls when the demand is much less than the supply.

The fact that it would be the common sense thing for Carranza to let us use the railways and capture his enemy Villa, is abundant reason why he won't do it.

It is believed that if the coal men have to pay only 25 cents a ton more for labor, they will generously let the public off with a 50 cents a ton increase.

T. R. says the nation must be ready to guard its own if it nominates him. It is ready now, provided each state and section gets its share of the preparedness money.

There is an unusual demand for housework girls this spring, who only want twice as much spending money as the mistresses have.

The commercial agencies say that buying is cautious, but there are no signs of it in the automobile or spring hat business.

Much is said about Easter joy, which with many persons consists in profound satisfaction with the new spring hat.

Oddzen Ends.

To have a riddle in your mind, Without a chance to spring it, Is very agonizing and, Makes one swear often, ding it!

It is a dark night (for the moon is behind a star) when first we meet Oddzen Ends, the riddle fiend and suddenly there is a sound as of knuckles against ivory. For Oddzen Ends has clapped his hand to his head.

"A masterpiece!" he cried. "I must tell somebody, quick!"

At that moment he bumped into a pole.

But stay! It is no Pole. It is a policeman.

"Officer!" cried Oddzen Ends, "what made Mary pick Ford?"

"It is me, you're addressin' when you're speakin' to!" demanded Officer O'Day. (For it was he.)

"Give it up?" went on Oddzen Ends excitedly. "Why, because she was afraid of owin' more? Owen Moore, see? Owen—"

Then all was black, for Policeman O'Day, with a force of twenty-two illuminations to the square inch, had hit him on the southwest temple with his club. Shortly afterwards the asylum ambulance drove up and got him, the moon came out from behind the star, and all was serene.

TO APPOINT CITY EMPLOYEES TODAY

City Council, Expected to Name Officers for the Coming Year, at Meeting This Afternoon.
At the meeting of the council to be held this afternoon, the appointment of the city officers for one year will be announced. If the present schedule of work is carried out, today the city, school and judicial officers who were elected at the election take office for the first time, or begin their new terms. Bonds and oaths will be on file this morning by all of the men, with the exception of one, who will file the necessary papers this afternoon.
The officers and officials to be appointed this afternoon by the city council are, the city clerk, city attorney, engineer, plumbing inspector, visiting nurse, health officer, and the sealers of weights and measures. As far as is known there will be no changes made by the commission in the present corps of city workmen. Their salaries were fixed by an ordinance passed five months ago. The bonds required of councilmen Roy Cummings are for one thousand dollars. The supervisors filed an oath and no bonds. Each constable has to furnish the same as the school commissioners and the justice of the peace.
There are several other matters to be brought up by the council at the meeting this afternoon, including a resolution ordering the railroad companies to make improvements at several crossings.
City Engineer C. V. Kerch has prepared the plans for the installation of the new lighting system on the streets, making out the different places where the lights are to be located. They will be placed according to the Staggard system, at an average of eighty-two feet apart. This will give equal distribution of light at all places along the street, the height of the lamps and the reflecting globes being such that the light is thrown at a correct angle to all places. The lighting plans may come up at the council meeting today.

JANESVILLE F. & A. M. HONOR PAST MASTERS

Over Two Hundred Attend Masonic Gathering Here Last Night—Twenty-Five Past Masters Present.
Janesville Lodge No. 55, F. & A. M. at Masonic temple last evening staged one of the most successful past masters nights in this history of the Janesville organization. A total of twenty-five past masters were in attendance and took active part in the meeting. Masonic members representing lodges at Cooksville, Edgerton, Waterville, Footville, Delavan, Milton Junction and Chicago were in attendance.
Over two hundred partook of an excellent supper prepared and furnished by the ladies. The latter extended every effort to make the evening, insofar as they were concerned, a big success. Wild flowers of spring graced the tables. A program of several vocal numbers were given, and there were also musical selections. George Hatch and George Grey, with three musicians from Chicago entertained the evening with their renditions.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Peter James Du Bois.
James Du Bois was held at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon at the late home at 317 Linn street, the Rev. Joseph Palmers, pastor of the First Baptist church officiating. The body was laid to rest in Oak Hill cemetery. The pallbearers were Robert Dressler, Harry and William Hager and Walter Kruger.

ANNOUNCEMENT TO THE WOMEN.

We have secured the services of Miss Rena Casey formerly of Battle Creek, Michigan, who has been in charge of the Corset Department of one of the most prominent stores, for the past nine years, and had special supervision of all the surgical fittings at the Battle Creek Sanitarium. Her expert knowledge of corset fitting gives the women of this vicinity the same advantages women enjoy in the larger cities. We feel very fortunate indeed in securing the aid of her vast experience to take charge of our Corset Department.
We shall continue to show the same lines of Corsets, including Madame Irene, Froilast and others.
May we have the pleasure of a visit from you?
The Golden Eagle, Levy's.

TO THE BUSINESS MEN OF THE WEST SIDE.

I have taken Mr. George Palmer's place as night watchman and beat is from the west end of the bridge to Academy street and I am not trying to take the east side of the river. You'll find me on the streets every night and morning. I have a time clock which I punch every hour at the Troy Steam Laundry. If you want me you'll find me every hour, any night, at the corner of Milwaukee and Jackson streets. In regard to my giving you business place attention you can telephone to Chief Champion. I have worked for him off and on ever since he has been chief.
Al. Smith, Sr.

DIVORCES TO FIVE GRANTED ON MONDAY

Women Seek Separations in All Cases Heard Before Judge Grimm Yesterday Afternoon.

Five divorces in all of which the women were the plaintiffs, were granted by Judge George Grimm in the court for the part of the plaintiffs in the case of Clayton E. Moore against Frederick H. Beilhart, W. E. Gower and others. The verdict of the jury was in favor of the defendants awarding them damages.

After married life of nearly fifteen years Belle Peck of Beloit sought a divorce from George Peck on the ground of cruelty. She was awarded the custody of two minor children and money. Mamie Robertson, also of Beloit, was granted a decree on the ground of cruelty from Henry H. Robertson, to whom she was married some seven years ago. The custody of the minor child was given to the plaintiff.

Charles Gould of the town of Avon secured a divorce from Harry Gould, after nine years of married life. The grounds were drunkenness, cruel and inhuman treatment.

There was one Green county divorce case, Lovina Poppers securing a separation from Warren A. Peppers. The plaintiff was given the custody of the three minor children and alimony.

HAS TAKEN APPEAL TO CIRCUIT COURT

Mabel Griffin Burnett, Convicted of Petty Larceny in Municipal Court Seeks Vindication.

Attorney E. H. Ryan, for Mabel Griffin Burnett, filed notice of appeal in the circuit court on Monday from the decision of the municipal court in which she was convicted of petty larceny and sentenced to serve a jail term. The case will probably be scheduled for an early trial.

Judge Grimm on Monday filed his opinion denying a motion for a new trial made on the part of the plaintiff in the case of Clayton E. Moore against Frederick H. Beilhart, W. E. Gower and others. The verdict of the jury was in favor of the defendants awarding them damages.

CARD OF THANKS
We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy during our recent bereavement and also for the beautiful floral offerings.

MESSANGER BOY IN CONGRESS AT FORTY

George E. Zood.

George E. Zood, of Goldsboro, N. C., quit school early to earn a living as telegraph messenger boy. Soon he learned the key and became an operator. He studied late at night and was admitted to the bar at the age of 31. In less than ten years he went to Washington to serve his first term as representative of the Third North Carolina district, after having been elected to several local offices. He is a Democrat.

URGENT PASSAGE OF BILL TO REGULAR CLEARING SPACE

THE GIRL AND THE GAME . . .

Copyright 1915 by Frank H. Spearman.

Seagrue, in his apartment, was still chagrined over the loss of what he had believed to be a worthless mine, but which had already become known all over Nevada as the richest gold-bearing property on the great Superstition range. He had not yet abandoned his hope of recovering through some clever-trick the property that he had parted with for what now seemed a paltry sum, and his mind was set on regaining control of it. He was now studying the bill of sale that signified his loss of the property. He presently took up a pen and wrote out a dispatch:

Amos Rhineland, Superstition Mine: Quarterly payment Superstition mine due tomorrow.

SEAGRUE.

Storm and Helen were with Rhineland when the telegram was handed to him at the mine. Rhineland showed it to his companions.

"I think I will draw the money from the bank and go to town with it in the morning," said Rhineland, studying the substance of the message.

Helen intervened: "Let me go with you," she exclaimed, "and I can start Spike for the mine when he leaves the jail. I should hate to see him get mixed up with any more crooks when he gets out."

Rhineland assented, and writing out an answer to Seagrue's message, read it to Storm before he gave it to a messenger:

Earl Seagrue: Alameda Apartments, Oceanside: Will make payment on time. In on the morning passenger.

RHINELANDER.

Seagrue received the prompt answer without much elation. He continued thoughtful, and as Adams, his servant, was leaving, called him back, asked for his hat and coat, and, accompanied by the man, left the apartment.

Directing his steps up street, Seagrue made his way to a quarter of the town less noted for its attractiveness than for its reputation as a haunt of men of doubtful character. Having reached the vicinity he desired—a shabby and deserted side street—he looked about to see whether he was observed, and, perceiving no one, started down an obscure alley. He knocked at the door of a weather-beaten house standing close to the street. A man opened the door, Seagrue, followed by Adams, went inside.

"Ward," said Seagrue, addressing the scowling occupant of the room, "I've got a job for you."

The man addressed as Ward, a scowling, beetle-browed adventurer, scrutinized Seagrue silently at the invitation.

"I know you're sore," continued Seagrue, "at the way the last job went," he added, recalling the incident of the stealing of Rhineland's pay roll, "but that wasn't your fault or mine."

Ward, without answering, continued to regard him askance. Seagrue unfolded his idea to the hardened crook and the promise of ready money and enough of it—whether he succeeded or failed—finally enlisted him.

"You and Adams here"—Seagrue nodded toward his servant—"can handle the thing without any trouble. If you can't do it, you'll be paid anyway. But if there's any possible chance, I want to see you separate Rhineland from his money for twenty-four hours."

"There's no time to lose," muttered Ward, picking up a railroad time table. "Are you ready to go, Adams?" Adams nodded. Seagrue supplied both plentifully with money and the two left together.

Ward and Adams, proceeding to the station, boarded an outgoing passenger train from Las Vegas which should bring Rhineland to Oceanside. Learning from the conductor where the down train would be flagged, they left their own train at a convenient station and buying tickets back, boarded the Las Vegas passenger when it stopped.

In the observation car, Rhineland, seated with Helen, was watching the landscape through the window when Seagrue's men coming in paid for seats not far away.

In his lap Rhineland held a small bag, and from the care with which he retained it, Ward surmised it might contain something of especial value.

Ward, while he sat studying out a scheme to take a chance on the proposition and at least get the bag into his possession, presently spoke to Adams: "The train stops twenty minutes at Clinton Junction," he muttered to his companion. "We can get hold of a bag there something like Rhineland's."

No further words were needed to convey his meaning. The moment the train pulled into Clinton, Ward and Adams hurried off uptown to a leather goods store. Breaking precipitately in on the proprietor, they pulled and hauled his stock about with small sense of responsibility. Evidently they wanted a bag, but they seemed to the shopkeeper hard to suit. It was only after much searching and many hard words that Ward's eyes lighted on something such as he was looking for.

Camel Carriages.

Camel carriages are not common conveyances in most parts of India, but on the great trunk road leading to Delhi they are frequently to be seen. They are large, double story wagons, drawn sometimes by one, sometimes by two or even three camels, recording to their size. Iron bars which give them a cage-like appearance were originally intended as a defense against robbers, and the carts were probably also used for the conveyance of prisoners.

Well Supplied.

An inveterate wit and punster asked the captain of a craft loaded with boards how he managed to get dinner on the passage. "Why," replied the skipper, "we always cook aboard."

"Cook a board, do you?" rejoined the wag. "Then I see you have been well provided with provisions this trip, at all events."—London Tit-Bits.

MOVIES REPLACE GOOD OLD KODAK ALBUM AND ARE A BOON TO YOUNG LOVE; THEY PRODUCE MANY MARRIAGES THESE DAYS

It has been estimated that a large part of the present day marriages may be attributed to the movie shows where the theme of love is so well exploited. Young couples find the movie theater an excellent trying place where to sit at one another's side and amid the music and the shadowy lights. Also, say the young men, the price is cheap.

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

This is a description of Ormi Hawley, recently printed in a picture: "A kiss seen through a microscope, a salad made from a chrysanthemum, and an orchid, drenched in the blood of a rose. If peaches were people."

Miss Hawley is best known through her work for the latter company, with which she was associated for a number of years. Some of her most important roles for the Philadelphia concern were leads in "The Nation's Peril" and "Race Suicide." Before going into pictures, Miss Hawley had extended stage experience.

JAP MAKES LOVE TO SWEET ANITA.

Picture the palpitating heart and the anxious brain of the swain, who sent this offer to the heroine. He must be a good boy regardless of the fact that he is some nobility, for see what he has to say:

"Dear Misses Anita Stewart, of the motion pictures, Brooklyn City, New York, America, United States."

"As I have addressed you in other days before, and you most gracious have sent of you a picture, I shall be great joyful still in this month if you by and by marry me."

"Japan where of the kingdom my father is noble, is of flowers most kindly and fair and many wives are happy. To you I would give great gifts of Oki since you are like flowers in the sun. If in a day quickly you will send me an answer, I shall be of glad heart and shall tell my mother so. With love and favor."

"It's hard for me to judge," was the smiling reply. "I'm the actress."

Arthur Maude, the Broadway favorite, recently was reminded of days long ago. He played "extra" in a prize fight scene, and as the camera was "panned" over to his section he shouted and gesticulated as wildly as the rest.

AT THE APOLLO.

Dustin Farnum Tonight. Supporting Dustin Farnum in the "Call of the Cumberlands," a Pallas Pictures production to be seen tonight at the Apollo theatre on the Paramount program, are three Paramount players who have established themselves as stars. They are Myrtle Stedman, Winifred Kingston and the venerable actor, Herbert Standing. Thus it may be seen that Mr. Farnum is surrounded by a cast of exceptional merit, one which carries the action of the story in a highly capable fashion. Seldom are four stars of such brilliance found together in a photoplay.

AT THE APOLLO.

Anna Held on Wednesday. Anna Held appears Wednesday for the first time upon the screen at the Apollo in "Madame La Presidente," produced by the Oliver Morosco Photoplay company, and released on the Paramount program.

"Madame La Presidente" is one of the famous stories of French fiction. Elected from a country town hotel for a gay "high jinks" in the cafe, Mlle. Gobelette of the "Pet of the Harem" traveling company calmly presents herself at the house of the local magistrate who is responsible for her homeless dilemma, and before he knows it goes to bed in the bedroom of his absent wife. The magistrate's superior, no less than the minister of justice, unexpectedly drops into town on a trip of inspection, and to save himself, the simple-minded judge passes off Gobelette as his wife. The minister is captivated by the fascinating little soubrette, and when the story shifts to picturesque Paris, the duel in wits between the terrified magistrate and the shrewd minister, each to keep his secret makes one of the most laughable situations in modern light comedy.

A Mistake Somewhere.

"Is it true, Miss Gertie," he said, "that there are just two things a woman will jump at—a conclusion and a mouse?"

"No," she answered; "there is a third, Mr. Philip."

After thinking the matter over a few moments he tremblingly made her an offer, but she didn't jump at it. He was not the right man.

Bullfighting.

In tradition the bullfight dates from the time before Hercules is said to have visited Spain and driven off the wonderful cattle of Geryon. In actual recorded history it antedates Caesar's campaign in Hispania, but the fight that is witnessed by the present day visitor in Madrid, Seville or Valencia is far more exciting and cruel than the contests between the noble Spaniard and the noble bull four centuries ago. A first class spectacle now involves the torturing and killing of seven or eight bulls and at least thirty horses.

JOHN BARRYMORE, A PRINCE AND CABMAN

Noted Comedian Portrays Two Characterizations and Causes Many Smiles.

"Nearly a King" with John Barrymore was a joyous combination of romance and comedy yesterday at the Apollo. The story is a clever one, with a touch of the unusual in it. Mr. Barrymore has a chance to show his ability in both comedy and romance.

His episodes, while partially extinguished under the over large bat of the cabman uniform, are smile invoking. There is, of course, a princess and a happy trick of ambassadors that makes romance fly the high feather of the pleasantest way out. Effective handling makes for luxuriance and foreign atmosphere in the general procedure, which is illuminated by Barrymore, who has been funnier but never more enjoyable.

STYLE

Style is conforming with the approved standards of taste. Grace delights the eye, for it is the poetry of motion.

The combination of these two, so necessary to every woman, gives irresistible charm—that indefinable something that makes women what men call "attractive."

There is a cold, hard fact, often stated by the world's best gown makers, that "Style is only possible through proper corseting."

The MODART Front Laced Corset is the finished product of a genius in the field of corsetry. The woman who wears one knows she is getting every aid art can give her to maintain, create or regain her personal attractiveness. The best health and style are hers, with grace and comfort attending.

There is nothing so convincing as a trial fitting (in fact it is the only proof) which can be had at no expense whatever in our corset department.

Combing Won't Rid Hair Of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to remove the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

CHAPTER VIII Mirapolis

During the strenuous weeks when Camp Niquola's straggling street was acquiring plank sidewalks and getting itself transformed into Chigringo avenue, with a double row of false-fronted "emporiums" to supplant the shack shanties, Monsieur Poudrecaux Bongras, late of the San Francisco tenderloin, opened the camp's first counter-grill.

Finding monsieur's name impossible in both halves of it, the camp grinned and rechristened him "Poodles." Later, discovering his dual gift of past mastery in potato frying and coffee making, the camp gave him vogue. Out of the vogue sprang in swift succession a cafe with side tables, a restaurant with private dining rooms, and presently a commodious hotel, where the food was excellent, the appointments luxurious, and where Jack—clothed and in his right mind and with money in his hand—was as good as his master.

It was in one of Bongras' private dining rooms that Mr. J. Wesley Cortwright was entertaining Brouillard, with Miss Genevieve to make a harmonizing third at the circular table. The little dinner had been a gustatory triumph. Nevertheless, when Miss Cortwright had gone upstairs, and the waiter would have refilled his glass, Brouillard shook his head.

If the millionaire saw the refusal he was too wise to remark it. He was still the frank, outspoken money-maker, hot upon the trail of the nimble dollar. Yet there was a change of some kind. Brouillard had marked it on the day, a fortnight earlier, when (after assuring himself morosely that he would not) he had gone down to the lower canyon portal to see the Cortwright touring car finish its second race across the desert from El Gato.

"Of course I was quite prepared to have you stand off and throw stones at our little cob house of a venture," Brouillard, the host allowed at the lighting of the gold-banded cigars. "You're the government engineer and the builder of the big dam; but you can't build your dam in one day, or in two, and the interval is ours. I tell you, we're going to make Mirapolis a buzz-hummer while the daylight lasts. Don't you forget that."

"Mirapolis?" queried Brouillard. "Is that the new name?"

Cortwright laughed and nodded. "It's Gene's name—'Miracle City.' Fite like the glove or a pretty girl's arm, doesn't it?"

"It does. But the miracle is that there should be any money daring enough to invest itself in the Niquola." "Why, bless your workaday heart, Brouillard," chuckled the host, "nothing is permanent in this shuffling, growing, progressive world of ours—absolutely nothing. Some of the biggest and costliest buildings in New York and Chicago are built on ground leases. Our ground lease will merely be a little shorter in the factor of time."

"So much shorter that the parallel won't hold," argued Brouillard. "The parallel does hold; long time, small profits and a slow return; short time, big profits and a quick return. You've eaten here before; what do you pay Bongras for a reasonably good dinner?"

Brouillard laughed. "Oh, Poodles. He chokes us, all right; four or five times as much as it's worth—or would cost anywhere else."

"That's it. He knows he has to make good on all these little luxuries he gives you—cash in every day, or you might say, and come out whole before you stop the creek and drown him. When we get in motion we're going to have Alaska faded to a frazzle on prices—and you'll see everybody paying them joyfully."

"And in the end somebody, or the final series of somebodies, will be left to hold the bag," finished Brouillard. "There needn't be any bag holders, Brouillard. Let me put it in a nutshell: we're building a cement plant, and we shall sell you the output—at a good, round price, I promise you, but still at a lower figure than you're paying for the imported article now, or than you will pay even after the railroad gets in. When our government orders are filled we can afford to wreck the plant for what it will bring as junk. We'll be out of it whole, with a nice little profit."

"That is only one instance," objected the guest. "Well, Bongras, here is one more," laughed the host. "And our power plant is another. You made your little kick on that to Washington—you thought the government ought to control its own power. That was all right, from your point of view, but we beat you to it. Now the reclamation service gets all the power it needs at a nominal price, and we're going to sell enough more to make us all feel happy."

"Sell it? To whom?" Mr. Cortwright leaned back in his chair and the sandy-gray eyes seemed to be searching the inner recesses of the querying soul. "That's inside information, but I don't mind taking you in on it," he said between leisurely puffs at his cigar. "We've just concluded a few contracts: one with Massingale—he's going to put in power drills, electric cars, and a modern equipment generally and shove the development of the 'Little Susan'; one with a new mining syndicate which will begin operations at once on half a dozen prospects on Jack's mountain; and one with a lumber combination that has just taken over the sawmills, and will install others, with a planing mill and sash factory."

Brouillard nodded. The gray eyes were slowly hypnotizing him. "But that isn't all," continued the promoter. "We are about to incorporate the power plant as the Niquola Electric Power, Lighting and Traction company. Within a fortnight we'll be lighting Mirapolis, and within a month after the railroad gets in we'll be operating trolley cars."

The enthusiast paused to let the information sink in, also to note the effect upon the subject. The noting was apparently satisfactory, since he went on with the steady assurance of one who sees his way clearly.

"That brings us down to business, Brouillard. I don't mind admitting that I had an object in asking you to dine with me this evening. It's this: we feel that in the reorganization of the power company the government, which will always be the largest consumer, should be represented in some effective way; that its interests should be carefully safeguarded. It is not so easy as it might seem. We can't exactly make the government a stockholder."

"No," said Brouillard mechanically. The underdepths were stirring, heaving as if from a mighty groundswell that threatened a tidal wave of overturnings.

"We are going to make you the government director, with full power to investigate and to act. And we're not going to be mean about it, either. The capital stock of the company is ten millions, with shares of a par value of one hundred dollars each, full paid and nonassessable. Don't gasp; we'll cut a nice little melon on that capitalization every thirty days, or my name isn't Cortwright."

"But I have no money to invest," was the only form the younger man's protest took. "We don't need your money," cut in the financier with curt good nature. "What we do need is a consulting engineer, a man who, while he is one of us and identified with us, will see to it that we're not tempted to gouge our good Uncle Samuel."

Brouillard smoked in silence for a full minute before he said: "You know as well as I do, Mr. Cortwright, that it is an unwritten law of the service that a civilian employee of the government shall not engage in any other business."

"No, I don't," was the blunt reply. "Supposing your father had left you a hundred thousand dollars to invest instead of a debt of that amount—you see, I know what a load your keen sense of honor is making you carry—suppose you had this money to invest, would your position in the reclamation service compel you to lock it up in a safety vault?"

"Certainly not, but if the department should learn that I am a stockholder in a company from which it buys its power—"

"There wouldn't be a word said—not one single word. They know you in Washington, Brouillard. Better, perhaps, than you think they do. They know you would exact a square deal for the department even if it cost you personal money. It's your duty and part of your job as chief of construction. And we'll leave the money consideration entirely out of it if you like. You'll get a stock certificate, which you may keep or tear up or throw into the wastebasket, just as you please. If you keep it and want to realize on it at any time before you begin to put the finishing forms on the dam, I'll do this: I'll agree to market it for you at par. Now let's quit and go and find Gene. She'll think we've tipped ourselves under the table."

"One moment," said Brouillard. "I couldn't serve as your engineer, Mr. Cortwright, not even in a consulting capacity. Call it prejudice or anything else you please, but I simply couldn't do business in an associate relation with your man Hosford."

Cortwright had risen, and he took his guest confidentially by the buttonhole. "Do you know, Brouillard, Hosford gets on my nerves, too? Don't let that influence you. We'll let Hosford go. We needed him at first to sort of knock things into shape; it takes a man of his caliber in the early stages of a project like ours, you know. But he has outlived his usefulness and we'll drop him. Let's go upstairs."

Late in the evening Brouillard passed out through the cafe of the Metropole on his way to his quarters. There were a few late diners at the tables, and Bongras, smug and complacent in evening regalia, was waddling about among them like a glorified head waiter.

Holding the engineer for a moment at the street door, "I'll be wanting to thank you," whispered the Frenchman with a quick-fung glance for the diners at the nearest of the tables, "doze flood—when she is coming, M'sieu Brouillard?"

"When we get the dam completed."

Saved Her Life

The unqualified endorsement of Fruitola and Traxo in a recent letter from Mrs. S. Grindle, 5918 Mignette St., Pittsburgh, Pa., will be of interest to other sufferers from stomach and intestinal troubles. Mrs. Grindle says:

"The doctors had given me up, saying the only hope left was an operation. I tried Fruitola and passed hundreds of gall-stones with the first two bottles. Am now feeling better than I have for years past. I will be glad to tell any sufferer how it has helped me, for I owe my life to it."

Fruitola possesses properties that act directly upon the intestinal parts, softening the congested waste and disintegrating the hardened particles that cause so much suffering, and expel the accumulation to the great relief of the patient. Traxo is a tonic-alterative that acts on the liver and kidneys, stimulates the flow of gastric juices, to aid digestion and removes bile from the general circulation. It serves to build up the weakened, run-down system.

For the convenience of the public, arrangements have been made to supply Fruitola and Traxo through representative druggists. In Janesville they can be obtained at J. P. Baker's, 123 W. Milwaukee.

and the sky overhead was clouded and threatening. A policeman, coming stealthily along, saw a suspicious-looking man loading about outside a certain house. For some time he watched and then determined to solve the mystery.

"Here, you!" he said, advancing suddenly. "Whatever hanging about this house for?"

The loafer turned his weary eyes on the questioner as he replied: "I'm only waiting for the lady inside to get to sleep, constable. We're married."

"Hello! Is this the grocer?" asked a voice at the other end of the wire. "Please send me up half a pound of butter at once, and have the boy bring change for a fifty-dollar bill, as I haven't anything smaller in the house."

"Excuse me, lady," said the grocer.

Hair Often Ruined By Washing With Soap

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary multifid coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get multifid coconut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Heart and Home PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What is a good remedy to cure dandruff? What is good for itching scalp? What will stop falling hair?

INQUISITIVE.
For a diseased condition of the scalp, I believe brushing is most efficacious. The brush must have long bristles, rather far apart, in order that they shall reach the scalp and stimulate it. Also there must be a massage given every night. A tonic put on at the same time is likely to hasten the process. I like a mixture made from a dram of alcohol, a tincture of carduus, half a dram of tincture of capsaicum, two drams of nux vomica, three-quarters of an ounce of cod liver oil and two and a half ounces of cologne. If the hair happens to be heavy with natural grease, one more likely to agree is made from half an ounce of alcohol, one ounce of tincture of carduus, three-quarters of an ounce of spirits of rosemary, glycerine and aromatic vinegar, with an ounce and a half of rosewater. The hair should be washed and brushed thoroughly, not only flat to the head, but putting the brush underneath and drawing the hair loose and free, so that all parts are ventilated. Each stroke must begin on the scalp so the tips of the bristles are felt. This done, the tresses should be divided into two sections, one-half pinned so that it will not get in the way when the other half is treated. Then some tonic should be poured into a saucer and applied with a soft brush. The hair should be parted not more than an inch from the middle and with the little brush the scalp line is wet. Another division not more than an inch away is made, that line wet and the hair laid flat, repeating the partings and applications until the entire scalp has been treated. This done, massaging should begin. A final brushing is given, and the hair loosely braided for the night.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married for fifteen years and my husband was twice my age when I married. He is now old and childish and cranky while I am still young and fairly good-looking. He doesn't allow me to go anywhere or entertain friends. Just recently I met a classmate of mine who has made good in the world and he wants me to leave my husband and marry him. Since my husband offers no happiness and nothing but drudgery should I accept the younger man's offer?

When you married you knew that your husband was just twice your age and you faced just such conditions as exist now. Your duty is to him, and the only way you can gain happiness is to do your duty. No, my dear, do not give him up in his old age to marry a younger man.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I made a few indiscreet but innocent mistakes in the presence of about a dozen people in our town, and have tried for about a year to live it down by being all that is good and pure. But people still pick on me and the worst of it is my employer and his relatives are the worst ones to hold this against me and continue to find fault and snub me in such a way that my explanation would not help matters any, but would just make things worse. Do you think it is best to continue to live here or call upon him and try to get over again in another town? I should hate to run away, because I do not feel guilty.

TROUBLED MRS. G. S.
Your employer would be apt to keep you if he really thought you had made any serious mistakes. Perhaps he doesn't realize how much he hurts you. Don't take the matter too seriously, and be assured that if you have made any innocent mistakes they will soon be forgotten by all worth while people. If you continue to lead a pure life, I wouldn't leave home if I were you. If your employer makes you utterly miserable, find another place to work.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a gentleman friend who calls on me about four times a week. How shall I entertain him? KRAZY KAT.
The man must find you very entertaining, or he would not call upon you four times a week. If your employer could talk, read, make candy and take walks. He ought to take you somewhere at least once a week.

HEALTH TALKS

SERMON ON CANCER BY A READER.
Here is a letter from a reader. It speaks for itself.

"My mother has just died from cancer of the breast. I have a lump the size of a hen's egg in the right breast which is very painful. We have a splendid family doctor who operated upon mother after she had had trouble with the breast for many years. The doctor is very anxious to operate on me but I have no money. I have the knife or X-ray (my mother had X-ray treatment after her operation)."

"I have heard some doctors can draw them out. Our doctor says they are fakes. In the meantime, what is to become of me?"

"What I want is honest, disinterested advice. I discovered the lump about eight months ago, but I did not tell the doctor about it till last week. I would be very grateful if you will answer through the paper."

Playing with fire is a gentle passion compared with that of a woman assuming. What kind of psychology is it that explains her procrastination? She states that she has a splendid family doctor, and that he has advised her to submit to operation. But she wants honest, disinterested advice! Where can she obtain such advice, if not from that same family doctor? He has given her the only advice an honest doctor would dare to give in such a case. Would she look to the charlatan who "draws them out" for honest advice? No, she would look to the doctor who has given her the only advice an honest doctor would dare to give in such a case.

We have personally observed scores of instances in which a certain type of "doctor" has been accused of "drawing it out," and while the poor deluded victim often imagines the sloughing off of a mass of the cancer meant that cure was assured, invariably the result was disastrous. Not even the knife, which at least does its work in a clean way and never causes blood poisoning, can offer a reasonable chance of cure unless the nodes or lymph glands high in the armpits are thoroughly dissected out. For the lymph glands draining the cancer are invariably involved in the disease and must be removed. All "cancer specialists" are based

Household Hints

EASTER EGGS.

To Color Easter Eggs—Some mothers do not like to have their children eat eggs colored with manufactured dyes. Vegetable lyes are harmless, and beautiful are the eggs colored with them. Five cents' worth of saffron will color a dozen eggs a beautiful bright yellow. The juice of parsley leaves makes green by boiling the eggs in it. Coffee, chocolate, cocoa and onion peelings make a rich brown. To make red or pink, drop a little cochineal in the water in which the eggs are boiled. All these colors are harmless and the children can eat all the Easter eggs.

Easter eggs may be beautifully colored by using scraps of colored crepe paper. Wrap each egg in the paper, fold a strip around egg and paper, twist tightly and in less than two minutes the egg is the hue of the paper. Two or more colors may be used at one time.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Old stockings lend make excellent dust cloths by being at seam and sewing together. Make thick paste of size desired for dust cloth, and then soaking in kerosene, thus making them dustless. They also make excellent holders for needles and stitching through a few times. Finish by using a small piece of stocking for handle and sew at corner.

Handsome Bedspread.—A small cost you can possess a beautiful bedspread. Purchase a ninety-eight-cent bedspread and cut this to just fit the top of your bed. Across the foot and end of bed cut a pattern of lace about sixteen inches deep, out of carpet warp. Splice corners.

Old sweaters make good floor mops.—Inexpensive Rugs of Matting—First bind cut edges with thick paste of wheat flour, fill matting with smooth, lay dry several days in the sun. Give it two coats of floor paint. Green is good, color to paint it. Old matting treated this way will give good service.

Bamboo Furniture.—If bamboo furniture has a tendency to crack, rub with oil and polish made of equal parts spirits of turpentine and wax together. It will give a brilliant luster.

To Remove Spots From Furniture.—Take a clean cloth of cheesecloth, dip in alcohol and rub on furniture after dust has been thoroughly removed.

SIMPLE HOME REMEDIES

For Cold on Lungs.—Rub chest with sweet oil, then cover with powdered cobalt.

Cough Mixture.—Four cents' worth anise seed, three cents' worth laudanum, three cents' worth essence of peppermint, one pint molasses, one pint water, mix with warm water.

For Burns.—One pint castor oil, slightly warmed and beaten to a froth. Add one teaspoon carbolic acid. Cork and use for burns. It gives instant relief.

THE TABLE

Scalloped Meat.—Cut rice, before cooking (boil until flaky and tender), two cups cold meat (different left-over meats may be used), but enough food grinder. Place in casserole in layers of rice and meat, pour over all enough tomato sauce to cover (a can of tomato soup may be used instead of making a sauce if more convenient). Place rice and meat on top and bake forty-five minutes. Serves six generously.

Hot Potato Souffle.—Season two cups hot mashed potatoes with salt, butter and a little minced parsley. Beat in half cup of milk and whip with fork until mixture is smooth. Fold in the whites of three eggs beaten stiff, turn into buttered dish and bake fifteen minutes, or until potatoes are brown and puffed, which is the literal meaning of souffle. Cheese is sometimes grated over this dish.

Cream Salad Dressing.—In upper part of a double boiler, beat to a cream yolks of three eggs, one teaspoon dry mustard, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon flour, one-fourth teaspoon paprika (or less of cayenne pepper), two tablespoons sugar, piece of butter size of egg. When smooth add one-half pint either sweet or sour cream, then add one-fourth pint vinegar and whites of the three eggs beaten very stiff. Put over hot water and cook to a thick custard. Makes a quart if eggs are fresh. Does not spoil if kept in cool place.

GINGLES' JINGLES

BE GAME.

When you have plunged and placed your dough, and taken up the reins, and things you find get moving slow—sit down and use your brains; and try to get a proper line on what is best to do, and not throw up both fists and whine, "I've met my Waterloo." We will admit you doped it wrong, and picked a rocky road, and that you found 'fore very long, you could not cart your load. You worked and worried, thought and planned, but all to no avail, the hand of fate had copped and canned your little wad of kale. Without a red cent in the world, a rating that's N. G., from fame to ruin you are buried, what shall the answer be? A string of sleepless nights and woes, anxiety and gloom, until you'd gladly point your toes to where the daisies bloom? No, not for mine. I'm here to serve, regardless of the cost, and know if I don't lose my nerve, I have not truly Erin's Jingles lost.

EMOTION SPREE

"What would women do if they could not cry? What poor, defenseless creatures they would be!"—Jerome.

"Did you like the play?" I asked a friend of mine about to play she had told me she was to attend.

"Oh, my dear," she said, "it was beautiful!" I cried all the time. I wouldn't have missed it for anything."

"You look tired," I said.

"Oh, yes," she answered, "I'm all done up. I always am after anything like that. It takes it right out of me to cry."

She Has No Use for Other Kinds of Spree.
Now if my friend's washerwoman had come to her and said, "I was on a spree yesterday. I'm all tired out today," I know she would have been horribly shocked.

And yet, hadn't she been on a spree herself? A spree of emotion, which, as she freely admitted, "took it right out of her."

"Tears have their place in our lives. Tears," someone has said, "are the safety valve of the heart when too much pressure is laid upon it." Dry-eyed grief is always the most dangerous.

You remember the bereaved wife, "Tennyson's Princess" who was near insanity from grief over her husband's death because she could not find relief in tears. Her attendants tried in every way to make her give way. Then finally:

"Rose, a nurse of ninety years, set his child upon her knee—
Like summer tempests came her tears—
'Sweet, my child, I live for thee.'"

Living With a Highly Cultured Daughter-in-Law Has Its Drawbacks.

"Well, I am glad you came over," Mrs. Ames beamed on her caller as she opened the door. "I was thinking about you and wishing you'd come."

"I thought the atmosphere would be more cheerful over here," returned Mrs. Folson, smiling.

"Beaumont has a meeting of the Civic Betterment Club at the house this afternoon."

"Shall we go down on the porch or stay in here?" Mrs. Ames asked.

"Let's stay here, and if you will let me, I will lie down on the couch. I am all tucked out. I do not believe there is anything so wearing as watching for signs of falling barometer in a person's face. I have never lived in the variable wind in the variable wind before."

"You lie right down here, and if you say so, I will go away and let you rest. It is a shame to have you wear yourself out like this so uselessly. There was motherly concern in Mrs. Ames' voice. "What happened to you?"

"I cannot say that anything happened," laughed Mrs. Folson, "but I never expected to get through the morning without some violent outbreak. In the first place, Harry had a very early call. Mrs. Gaby's baby was sick. You know that baby was the first one he helped to introduce into the world, and I do not believe he could be more anxious to have everything go all right if it were his own. I did not want him to go off without his breakfast, and there is no telling how long he would be delayed, so I was washing around trying to get something on the table for him when he came downstairs, collar in hand, to finish dressing in the bathroom. Your egg is all ready. I called 'Sit right down and eat it. I will have the toast done by the time you have that finished.' He laid his collar on the table and popped into a chair. He had not finished his breakfast when Beaumont came down. When she saw her husband eating in collarless abandon she stopped as if rooted to the spot."

"Why, Harry Folson?" she exclaimed. "I would not have believed you could so far forget yourself to eat without your collar. I refuse to eat at the table with you looking like that!" An explosive laugh was Harry's only answer. It was funny, for her breakfast was not ready and nobody had asked her to eat. Of course the funny side struck me, but I turned my back to hide my amusement."

"Does Harry always laugh at her ill-nature?" inquired Mrs. Ames.

"No; sometimes he is as solemn as a judge, but I know him so well that he is laughing inside. I am glad he finds it amusing. I must come."

WOMAN WHO HAD BEGUN DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS GETS A DEATH BENEFIT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Madison, Wis., April 18.—The Indiana commission today awarded a death benefit of $1,750 to Gertrude Paul. Although she was not living with her husband at the time of his death, while in the employ of the Frank Carter company of Hudson, and had actually begun divorce proceedings against him and was living with relatives at St. Paul, the commission found she was dependent upon him for support. He was killed April 20, 1915.

When a Man's Great.
"I would like to ask you one more question," said the youth.

"Let it come," rejoined the home grown philosopher.

"When," quoted the youth, "would you say that a man has achieved greatness?"

"When he deserves his own opinion of himself," answered the home grown philosopher.—Chicago News.

NORMAL MUSICAL FORCES
GIVE PLEASANT CONCERT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Whitewater, April 18.—The annual concert of the musical forces of the normal school last Friday evening proved to be one of the most successful in the history of the institution. The program consisted of a new cantata, "The Song of Y's," with Miss Henrietta Miller of Milwaukee as soloist. A second cantata, "Paul Revere's Ride," by the normal school Glee club, with Miss Trautman as soloist, and two groups of songs, one by Miss Miller and one by Mr. Trautman, completed the program. Miss Miller's solos for the evening were "The Star," "Villanelle," and "Cradle Song," and this group of songs brought out the best of the singer's flexible and beautiful soprano as no passage in the cantata had done. Many times Miss Miller was called back to the platform and she responded with "To You" and "The Dandelion."

CHICAGO MILK DEALERS TO HAVE BRANCH IN EDGERTON

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Edgerton, April 18.—A representative of the Bolas & company, milk, cream and butter dealers of Chicago, was in the city yesterday and signed an option with the Edgerton Water company for the purchase of the old mill property. This firm handles and supplies milk in the city of Chicago and proposes to buy whole milk from the farmers, pasteurize it and ship it to the city market. They will also run a general creamery and will ship cream and butter and when running at full capacity will employ about sixteen men. There will be a representative of the concern in the city the latter part of the week and will interview the farmers in the vicinity of the city to ascertain the amount of milk that they may expect at this point. They also have a plant of this kind located at Lyons, Wisconsin. In event this concern decides to locate here, it will mean a higher price to the farmer for his milk, will bring the farmer to town oftener, and will give employment to a force of men. Let everyone put their shoulder to the wheel and boost.

FRESE MILK FOR BOYS IN THE TRENCHES

Women pouring fresh milk into cans for transportation to French lines.

This work is performed in the farmyard quite near the milksheds by women. In order to strain off any foreign substances the milk is poured from the pails through a straining-cloth. Afterwards the cans are sealed and sent up to the front for distribution to the troops in billets and in the trenches. The work of filling the cans is carried out under the supervision of the army authorities.

Hawthorne's Wife.

In one of the essays in his "Vanishing Roads" Richard Le Gallienne tells the following:

One wintry afternoon in Salem Hawthorne returned home earlier than usual from the custom house. With pale lips he said to his wife, "I am turned out of office," to which she—God bless her!—cheerily replied: "Very well! Now you can write your book," and immediately set about lighting his study fire and generally making things comfortable for his work. The book was "The Scarlet Letter."

Dreams As Omens.

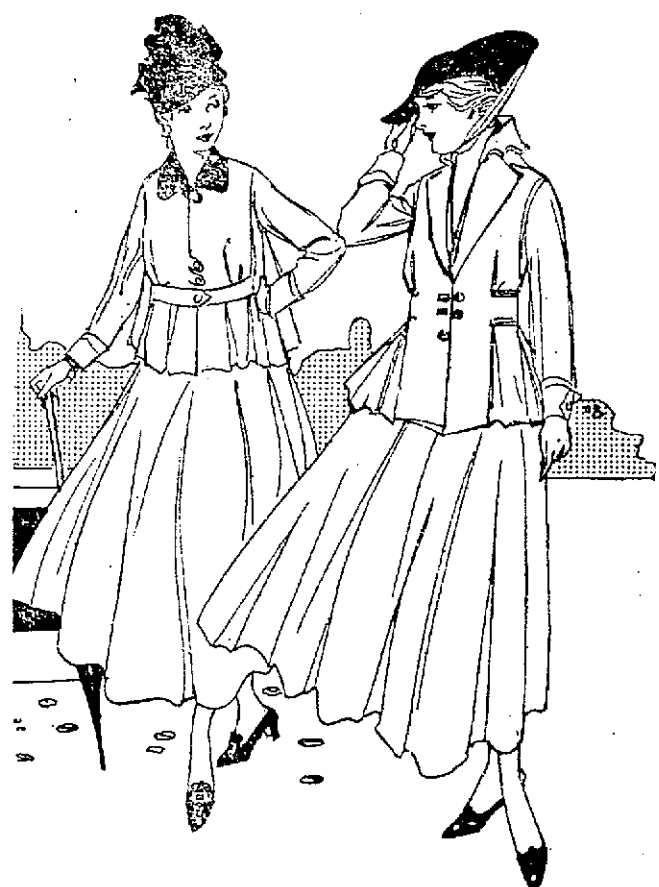

From the earliest times recorded in history men have believed in the prophetic character of dreams. So far as we know, the first to deliberately and systematically attempt the interpretations of dreams was Amphyctyon of Athens, who lived about the year 1490 B. C. The Bible mentions dreams in many places, and we are entitled to conclude from the Biblical references that there were professional interpreters of dreams who were not infrequently resorted to by the dreamers.—Exchange.

VILLAREAL IS THE NEW REVOLUTIONIST

Reports Indicate That Former Los Angeles Editor and Mexican Patriot Is After Carranza.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Washington, D. C., April 18.—Antonio Villareal, who is reported to be the latest revolutionist to start a revolution against the Carranza government in Mexico, has had a busy career as a soldier, statesman, newspaper man and authority on agrarian, social and religious problems in Mexico. While his revolution thus far has not reached any conclusions it has been spoken of as a possibility and attempts have been made to secure the cooperation of prominent Carranza commanders at Juarez and elsewhere along the border.

He helped Ricardo Flores Magon and other Mexican revolutionists in Los Angeles to revolt against Porfirio Diaz before Francisco Madero took the field, an agitation which resulted in four or five Mexicans spending some time in a federal penitentiary charged with violation of American neutrality.

With Magon, Villareal edited Regeneracion, a Mexican paper published in Los Angeles in support of the revolution and helped plan a commonwealth which it was intended to found in Lower California, finances for which were collected by Magon's friends. After failure of the commonwealth project Villareal became an ordinary street laborer in Los Angeles, but later joined Madero and was sent as his agent to Barcelona, Spain.

Villareal has been known as a strong anti-clerical and has advocated radical reforms in the Catholic church in Mexico. He opposed foreign-born priests in Mexico and when he was governor of Nuevo Leon he was the first constitutional executive to espouse strict rules for conduct of his church in his territory. Villa followed these rules largely in regulation of the church in Chihuahua.

A proclamation by Villareal in the summer of 1914 on the treatment to be given followers of Huerta, created much interest in Mexico as it was interpreted as meaning an expression of the general attitude of constitutional chiefs on the subject of Huerta, which was causing much speculation and anxiety at that time among foreign nations. Villareal opposed the wish of part of the constitutional party for drastic punishment of those who had opposed the party and said all within his jurisdiction would be given strict legal trials.

General Villareal is known as a student of economical and social problems. He advocates suppression of the social evil attributing to it many of the troubles of his countrymen. He studied thoroughly all aspects of the social evil in Switzerland on a visit to Europe.

In his work as soldier, General Villareal took an active part in the campaigns about Monterey in the summer of 1914.

NEBRASKA PRIMARY TAKES PLACE TODAY

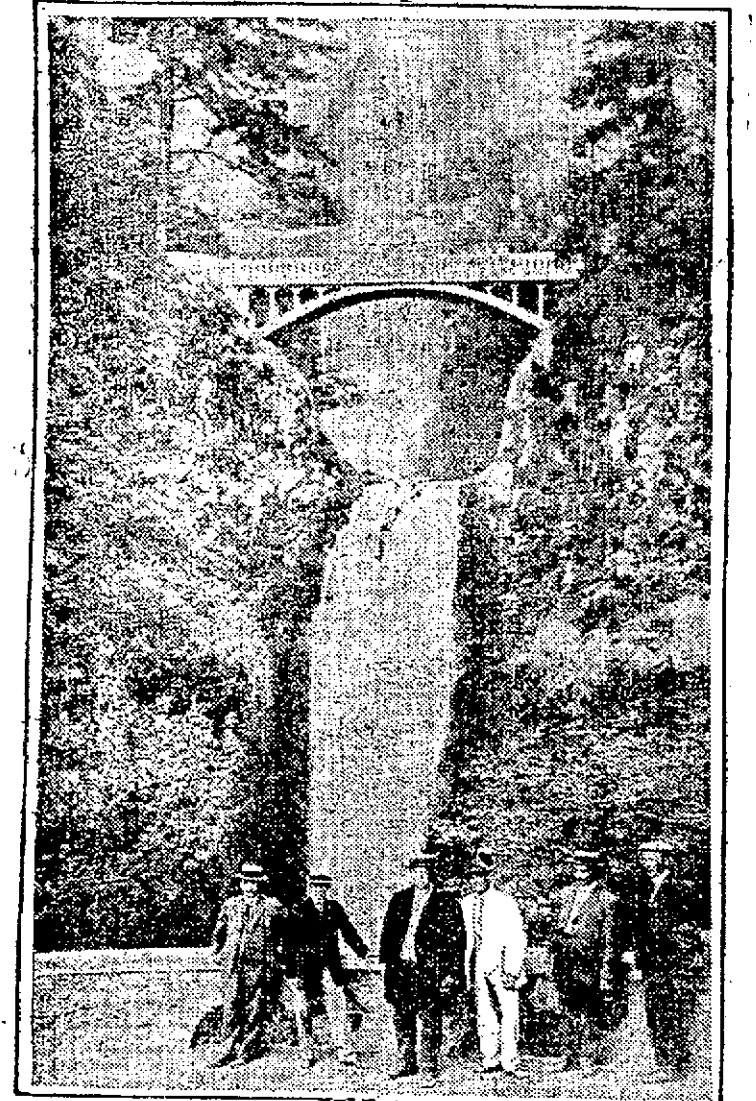

Hitchcock and Dunn, Bryan's Attorney, Running in Senatorial Campaign.—Wilson Is Strong.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Omaha, April 18.—The chief interest in today's state primaries in Nebraska centered in the offices of governor and United States senator. In the presidential preference vote Woodrow Wilson had no opposition, although Robert G. Rose of Nebraska had filed for the place on both the democratic and republican tickets. What he represented was not generally known. Republican voters had the names of Albert B. Cummings of Iowa, Henry D. Estabrook of New York (formerly of Nebraska), and Henry Ford of Michigan to choose from. A campaign of considerable vigor was also made in the interest of Charles E. Hughes of New York. Justice Hughes had forbidden the use of his name on the official ballot, but a concerted movement was made several weeks ago to induce voters to write his name in as permissible.

M'MAHON TO SERVE ON REGENTS' BOARD

Former Secretary of Madison Board of Commerce Will Not Relinquish Residence in Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., April 18.—There will be no vacancy on the board of university regents as the result of Edward M. McMahon accepting the position of secretary of the St. Paul board of commerce. It became known here today that McMahon will continue to claim Wisconsin as his residence, will exercise his voting privilege in Wisconsin and as a resident of the state will continue as a member of the board of university regents also. Several persons made application to Governor Philip for the appointment. Now it develops that McMahon is to stay by the regents. McMahon was appointed a regent by Governor McGovern and the term does not expire until 1919.

AN ALIBI FOR BOND

"While your mother and I are away will be a good time to have the car put into shape." This remark addressed by Frank Bond, Sr., to Frank Bond, Jr., on the eve of the former's departure for a week-end trip to the country was the wet blanket upon the plans that the younger Bond had been laying for his own week-end diversion. When the bolt fell he was driving the car in question home from business and to vent his feelings he sounded, the horn with unusual vigor.

"There are several little things that need attention and there will be all day Saturday to do it in."

Bond, junior, merely grunted and turned an unnecessary sharp corner. That night he took little interest in the plans of his elders for their short week-end trip. His mind was too full of his own plans that had been frustrated. He had been so confident when he had laid them before Molly, and Molly's blue eyes had danced so merrily as she made plans for the picnic luncheon which she would prepare with her own fair hands. If only he hadn't been so sure, if he had only left a loophole through which he could make his exit.

With the explanation that he was going "down town for a while," he sauntered out after dinner in the direction of Molly's house.

Just as he passed Gink's garage Bond, junior, had an inspiration—not a very brilliant one, but one which, like the proverbial straw, was at least worth snatching at.

Frank sauntered into the gloomy, badly lighted concrete interior, carefully stamping out the cigarette that he had been smoking as he moodily regarded the "No Smoking" sign. Gink's, junior, approached him, wiping gasoline from his hands.

"Say, Gink's," Frank said, with what he took to be an interesting tone of despondency in his voice, "the governor is going to bring the car around early in the morning to have some repairs done—nothing that needs to be done immediately, but some little jobs. Listen to me! You can't fix it. You haven't time. In fact, you won't have room in the garage for it."

"Wake up," muttered Bond. "I said you wouldn't be able to fix the car, and, by the way, any time you want to use my baseball pass it's yours. Do you get me?"

Gink's grinned. "I get you. Got a lady friend?"

"Never you mind what I've got. Just you take the hint if you know what's healthy for you."

"Well, of course," stammered Gink's, junior, "I know how you feel about it. Got a girl of my own?"

Rather resenting this piece of familiarity on the part of the young son of the garage owner, Bond went on toward the home of Molly. There was an air of thwarted ambition in Bond's manner that night that rather egged Molly on to unusual vivacity and sympathy. On leaving he remembered the loophole.

"It's barely possible," he remarked, wearily regarding the brim of his hat, "that the car will be out of commission tomorrow. I'm awfully sorry, and if it is I'll let you know very early."

The plan of Bond, junior, aided and abetted by Gink's, junior, worked admirably in the morning and Bond, senior, ran the car back into his garage without the shadow of a suspicion.

Saturday was fair and the shoe-string that held the disconnected speedometer was strong enough for its task and did not give way. Molly was especially charming.

Monday the car was safely locked in the Bond garage, and Mr. and Mrs. Bond had come home in high glee. There was no hint of trouble until Tuesday noon when Mrs. Bond at luncheon began by showing especial solicitude for Bond, junior, which Bond, junior, was wise enough to know meant that Bond, senior, was in wrong. Toward her husband she wore an air of injured innocence. Something had made her jealous. Bond, junior, was sure of that.

In the hall, after dinner, he caught the son by the coat sleeve.

"I want to see you in the garage," he said.

"Son," began the father, when they had reached the small automobile shelter, "I'm in a real predicament and maybe you can help me out. You know yesterday I went around with some of my clients. Some of them are women and one of them is a blonde, and your mother knows it. This morning she found this slipped in the back cushion."

Bond, senior, produced from his coat pocket a single golden wire hair pin. "That's what's the matter with her. If you can prove an alibi for me it will be all right. If you could say, for instance, that you had been out with a blonde on Saturday when we were away I would give you my blessing."

Bond, junior, straightened up. A new feeling of chumminess for his father welled up within him and braced him for his confession.

"Yes," he said, "I'll do it, and, dad, do you mind giving me that little hair-pin, just as a token. You know I am pretty fond of Molly."

(Copyright, 1915, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

They Like It. "Are goats fond of music?" "I should say so. I had one that ate up $50 worth of phonograph records."

Unsalted. "Isn't he the fresh young thing?" "No wonder. The people he works for say he doesn't earn his salt."

A Financial Difficulty. "Seaweed has been found to be prolific in fuel oil."

"But if they organize a company to exploit it, won't they first have to squeeze the water out of the stock?"—Baltimore American.

MARCH FIRE LOSSES NEAR HALF MILLION

Estimate of Losses for Month Placed at $419,415, as Compared With $520,300 in March, 1915.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, April 17.—According to returns made to State Fire Marshal J. J. Cleary, fire losses in Wisconsin during the month of March totaled $419,415, covered by insurance of $375,000. The number of fires was 250. This is a considerable decrease from the corresponding month of March, 1915, when the losses were $520,300 and the number of fires 280. It is also a considerable increase over the totals for February, 1916, when the losses were $305,210 and the number of fires 200. Chimney fires and fires caused by wood too near stoves and fires were the chief sources of loss. There were 68 chimney fires, causing total losses of $24,750; while 23 fires were started through wood exposure, the losses being $32,590. Ten fires were set down as incendiary or suspicious, the losses being $14,710, covered by insurance of $1,350. Twenty-seven fires were of unknown origin.

The chief fires of the month were: March 1, Rhodes drug store and garage, Pewaukee, loss, $7,000; March 1, R. B. Heard drug store, New Auburn, $7,500; March 1, Ross, Hooch, 20, tel, Edgar, $5,000; March 20, Farmers Store Co., store, New Auburn, $25,000; March 22, high school, Lake Mills, $1,500; March 24, Chippewa Falls Mercantile Co., store, Chippewa Falls, $152,000; March 24, William Murdock store, Union Grove, $25,000; March 24, S. A. Mauseth store, Cameron, $17,000; March 28, electric plant, Sharon, $7,500.

MILITARY TRAINING CAMPS ARE PLANNED

Applications Being Received to Enlist in Three Camps Planned by the Government

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Indianapolis, April 18.—Many applications for admission to the United States military training camps to be held during the months of July, August, September and October at Fort Harrison have begun to arrive, although the blanks have not yet been sent out by the training camp committee in charge of the preliminary plans. Three camps will be conducted and a total enrollment of more than 2,000 men is expected. The committee appointed to arrange the finances of the camps has just about completed the raising of $4,000, which was estimated would be sufficient to meet the expenses of the camps.

The date of the first camp will be July 4 to August 4; the second from August 4 to September 4 and the third from September 4 to October 4. Each camp will be able to take care of 750 men and at least 500 citizens will be necessary for each period. Men from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska and a part of Montana will be eligible for enrollment, provided they meet the other requirements.

The camps are intended to give citizens as much of the fundamental education of a soldier, non-commissioned officer and officer as can be imparted during the brief period of the camp. The instructions will be given under the direct charge of regular army officers and there will be a certain routine of duty, including rifle practice. Infantry training only will be given at Fort Harrison.

The applicants to be enrolled must have an excellent reputation, be an American citizen between 18 and 45 years of age, in sound physical condition and have a college education or its equivalent. By "equivalent" is meant, it is explained, a good elementary education, supplemented by business or training in a mechanical or technical profession.

In addition to paying his own transportation charges, each successful applicant must pay $25 on his arrival at Fort Harrison for his keep and camp maintenance during each period. This does not include the uniform and necessary toilet articles. The government will provide free arms, ordnance, and equipment for infantry, mess kit, (cut, blankets, poncho, cot, bedding and sweater.

Adjutant General H. O. S. Helmsland of the central department United States Army headquarters at Chicago, has general supervision of the arrangements.

UNITED STATES COURT WILL DECIDE ON OWNERS
THE CAPTURED SHIP APPAM.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Norfolk, Va., April 18.—One phase of the European war will come up for settlement by the Judge of a United States court here today when representatives of England and Germany appear before Judge Waddell to claim ownership of the prize ship Appam, the British steamer captured by the high seas by the phantom German raider Moewe and brought to Hampton Roads port a captive by German naval forces.

Germany claims the United States government should surrender the Appam to Germany on the ground that the steamer was captured as a prize of war and was entitled to be put in the neutral port of Hampton Roads because she was in an unseaworthy condition.

Lieutenant Berg, commander of the prize crew, the Appam, contends that making this point under the conditions leaves the vessel and cargo legally a German prize, entitled to be taken back to Germany and kept as German property.

Berg cites a treaty of 1823 between the United States and Germany, to uphold this theory.

The English representatives claim that the Appam touched Hampton Roads not as a prize of war, but as a possession automatically came under the jurisdiction of the neutral government; and that, because she was originally owned by British subjects, she should be turned over to the British owners by the neutral government.

GERMANY HAS STARTED THE RECONSTRUCTION OF SERBIA.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Athens, April 18.—Germany has begun reconstructing Serbia. Austria-Hungary has charge of the work, but at the top Germans are directing it.

If the people will agree to become Germans, insofar as it is possible to make them over, a point has now been reached where the conquerors evidently are disposed to treat them humanely.

Men are being invited to return to their homes on condition that they cultivate the land in the Austro-German interests. Russian prisoners are even being loaned to help with farm work.

Mills are being refitted with modern machinery, expert engineers have assumed management duties and every effort is being made to find workers in both from the native population.

A similar policy is being adopted in Yugoslavia. At the same time, the industrial and agricultural improvements are in progress, both countries are being turned practically into huge fortifications.

Schools also are being opened. In Belgrade two are running with total attendance of about 3,000. Instruction, however, is solely in German. Serbian children are compelled to learn it, whether they wish to or not.

WISCONSIN TO RAISE BIG CROP OF BARLEY

Notable Increase in Acreage Is Reported for This Season—Other News of Interest to Farmers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Wis., April 18.—According to reports which are coming to officials of the college of agriculture, larger acreages will be planted to barley than in any recent year. The indications are that this cereal will be the most popular grain crop to be sown in a number of Wisconsin counties this spring. The world-wide honors won by Wisconsin in grown barley, when exhibited at various grain exhibitions, is given as one of the main reasons for the boom. In addition, for the past three years growers have realized from $2 to $5 more an acre from barley than from oats, which has been the most popular of the grains grown in the state.

E. A. Moore, secretary of the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment station, is the authority for the statement that the production of barley, which will command a high market price, requires three things: Superior seed of one of the pedigreed varieties, fertile soil, preferably a rich, silty loam, and careful harvesting. Buyers of Wisconsin barley are very insistent on great care at harvesting time.

Wisconsin farmers are finding that it pays well to raise the grade of beef cattle, which is making certain disa- of Wisconsin beef. A recent fee furnished still in the Milwaukee market. A shipment of steers raised in southwestern Wisconsin and station, recently sold in Milwaukee at 10 cents a pound live weight, for the price on the Chicago market for the same date was $9.35. There were in- of each of the leading beef breeds, which are popular with the stockmen of the state.

Large numbers of Wisconsin's leading growers are fighting plant bed pests by means of their seed before planting. Workers of the agricultural experiment station have given this method thorough trial and have found that steaming is the most successful plan of controlling certain serious tobacco bed diseases. When the growers co-operate the cost of steaming is low, running from 75c to $1 per acre. The steaming prevents diseases like the seedling rot from developing, kills weed seeds, produces earlier and more vigorous plants and controls insect pests of the seedling. The importance of this precaution is seen when it is known that Wisconsin is one of the leading tobacco producing states. Large acreages are devoted to this crop in Rock, Dane, Green, Vernon, Chippewa and certain of the other counties.

HEAVY SUGAR SHIPMENTS
MADE FROM PANAMA NOW.

Panama, April 18.—Higher prices and improvements in the method of manufacture and better transportation facilities are having their effect on the sugar production of the Republic of Panama. Heavy sugar shipments are beginning to come from the large Santa Rosa mill near Aguadulce in the Province of Colce. This province is now the center of the sugar industry of the republic but probably will have a serious rival in the Province of Chiriqui when the new railway is inaugurated there.

The indications are that the present season's run will be fully 50,000 sacks as compared with 17,000 last year. The product finds a ready market at $5.50 per hundredweight for the best grade, the brown sugar bringing somewhat less. Most of the sugar production is consumed within the borders of the country although a small quantity is exported to neighboring republics.

Considerable progress has recently been made in sugar cane cultivation in Chiriqui Province where several Americans have acquired large tracts of land. Preparations are now being made for the construction of a large sugar mill in that vicinity. The new railway which President Porras opens up the next month probably will stimulate both the sugar and coffee production of that section of the country.

AGRICULTURAL and GARDEN DEPT

ALLEN B. WEST, Director

Question:—How shall I dry off a cow?

Answer:—Some cows are much more persistent milkers than others, but as a general rule a cow should be dried off from six to eight weeks prior to calving. It is a common practice with many farmers to dry up the cow by reducing her feed. This, however, is not to be recommended. It is better that a change in the character of the feed be made, rather than giving feed that is flesh forming rather than that suited to produce milk. If the cow is a persistent milker it is better to reduce the quantity of milk, rather than to stop it altogether. The drying up should be gradual, giving the organs of the udder time to adjust themselves to the change. The feed should be changed a day for a week, then three or four days she may be milked every other day, then twice a week until the quantity of milk is so small that no trouble will result if not drawn. A careful watch should be kept to see that the udder is in normal condition so that no complications result. After the milk is dry she should be fed sufficient food so that she may properly nourish her calf and maintain her flesh, care being taken also that the udder is not constipated, but laxative. To this end both timothy hay and cotton seed meal should be avoided. The cow should be in good flesh when she calves, but it is well to reduce the ration slightly a few days before she calves to prevent the danger of milk fever and other calving troubles.

Question:—To what extent should a brood mare be worked?

Answer:—A brood mare may be worked with the other horses, care being taken that she is not strained in any way or that the work is not extreme. In spring's work she should be worked both gradually. Better and stronger colts are the result if the mare is given the exercise which work in moderation affords.

Question:—I am planning to sow alfalfa with a nurse crop. When is the best time for seeding and what shall I use for the nurse crop? How much seed shall I use?

Answer:—The time for seeding is to be governed by the best time for the grain chosen for the nurse crop. Both oats and barley are used, but barley is recommended on account of its maturing earlier and also on account of its taking less water from the soil. If oats are used they should be cut in the milk stage and used for hay. The barley may be allowed to ripen, unless the season should be very dry, when it should be cut early. Care must be taken not to let the barley too thick, from three pecks to a bushel being about the right amount with twenty pounds of alfalfa seed.

The report of the alfalfa order shows that throughout the state the best stands of alfalfa were obtained without the nurse crop, the failures being two to one when seeded with a nurse crop as when seeded alone. In case where no nurse crop is used the ground should be disked or harrowed after plowing (which if not done in the fall should be done early in the spring), once a week until the middle of June. This disking warms the soil, conserves moisture, and makes an ideal seed bed. If land is very weedy it is best to continue cultivation until July or August before planting. Never plant after August 15.

If your land was plowed this spring and you use a nurse crop, you should roll the land after seeding. Alfalfa requires a firm seed bed, and the rolling produces this and aids in rapid harrowing should follow rolling to provide a loose surface and to prevent crusting and drying out of the soil. Fall plowed land does not require rolling.

Question:—When may we find you at the high school?

Answer:—An inquiry by telephone at the office of the high school will bring the desired information. The clerk is in the office from 8:30 a. m. to 11:45 and from 1 p. m. to 5, and will be able to make appointments for interviews as desired.

cheese was recently made from Richland county to London. The shipment included 17 carloads of the different brands for which this western county is famous.

The number of Wisconsin butter-makers who pasteurize their cream is increasing. Nearly one-half of the entries in the April butter scoring exhibition just held at Madison, were made from pasteurized cream. It is hardly to be expected that the proportion of creameries in the state making pasteurized butter is the same as that given in these entries, but there is every indication that the practice of pasteurizing is on the increase. The quality of the butter submitted for this contest was of unusually high grade. Those who received a score of 94 or above were: O. A. Miller, Thiensville; C. W. Page, Elkhorn; Albert Erickson, Amery; F. M. Werner, Waterloo; Axel Maland, Oregon, Ill.

Officials of the Wisconsin Pea Packers' association will co-operate this season with officials of the experiment station in working out means of control of the pea weevil and aphid, which have caused heavy loss in certain of the pea growing section of the state.

MADE FROM PANAMA NOW.

Panama, April 18.—Higher prices and improvements in the method of manufacture and better transportation facilities are having their effect on the sugar production of the Republic of Panama. Heavy sugar shipments are beginning to come from the large Santa Rosa mill near Aguadulce in the Province of Colce. This province is now the center of the sugar industry of the republic but probably will have a serious rival in the Province of Chiriqui when the new railway is inaugurated there.

The indications are that the present season's run will be fully 50,000 sacks as compared with 17,000 last year. The product finds a ready market at $5.50 per hundredweight for the best grade, the brown sugar bringing somewhat less. Most of the sugar production is consumed within the borders of the country although a small quantity is exported to neighboring republics.

Considerable progress has recently been made in sugar cane cultivation in Chiriqui Province where several Americans have acquired large tracts of land. Preparations are now being made for the construction of a large sugar mill in that vicinity. The new railway which President Porras opens up the next month probably will stimulate both the sugar and coffee production of that section of the country.

Highly Excitable.

"Brown is rather an excitable chap, isn't he?"

"I should say he is! Why, he almost got a stroke of apoplexy the other night while watching a chess tournament."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Question:—How shall I dry off a cow?

Answer:—Some cows are much more persistent milkers than others, but as a general rule a cow should be dried off from six to eight weeks prior to calving. It is a common practice with many farmers to dry up the cow by reducing her feed. This, however, is not to be recommended. It is better that a change in the character of the feed be made, rather than giving feed that is flesh forming rather than that suited to produce milk. If the cow is a persistent milker it is better to reduce the quantity of milk, rather than to stop it altogether. The drying up should be gradual, giving the organs of the udder time to adjust themselves to the change. The feed should be changed a day for a week, then three or four days she may be milked every other day, then twice a week until the quantity of milk is so small that no trouble will result if not drawn. A careful watch should be kept to see that the udder is in normal condition so that no complications result. After the milk is dry she should be fed sufficient food so that she may properly nourish her calf and maintain her flesh, care being taken also that the udder is not constipated, but laxative. To this end both timothy hay and cotton seed meal should be avoided. The cow should be in good flesh when she calves, but it is well to reduce the ration slightly a few days before she calves to prevent the danger of milk fever and other calving troubles.

THREE GO ON TRIAL FOR MURDER OF JOSEPH HELLER.

Marinette, Wis., April 18.—One of the most important cases to be tried during the May term of court before Circuit Judge Quinlan will be the murder charge against John Saute and John Knock, both of Milwaukee and Mrs. Rosie Gurrar of Stelton, Penn. They are charged with slaying Joseph Heller. Heller was murdered on December 28, 1914 near Pembina.
His body was hidden under railroad ties and was not found until spring.
Leo Dargue was arrested in connection with the crime.

The only clue which authorities had to work on was a rusty gun found beside Heller's body. A Milwaukee detective agency was hired by friends of Dargue. They soon collected evidence which convinced authorities that the man they held was not guilty of the crime and he was released.
The detectives traced the gun to a Milwaukee sporting goods store. The name of the purchaser was found there. The three under arrest were the last persons seen with the slain man, according to the police.

Police declare that the men killed Heller because of illicit relations which he is said to have had with their wives.

WINNING SOX RUN

White Sox Come Back and Beat Jones' Tribe Six to Five in Overtime Game—Red Sox Still Going.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Pinch hitters won on Monday at Chicago for the White Sox, a game their regulars tried to throw away. A single by Ness, batting for Williams in the ninth, drove in the tying run and Lynn, batting for Cloutier in the eleventh, sent in the run that gave Chicago the game over St. Louis, 5 to 3. The visitors took a lead of five runs in the first three innings, mainly the result of errors. Twice in the first Schalk threw wild on attempted sacrifice hits, and twice when Danforth caught a runner off first. Fournier's errors allowed him to advance a base.

Good Boy Salier. St. Louis, April 17.—Doak was hit hard and Chicago won easily from St. Louis here on Monday, 5 to 1. With the score tied in the sixth, Salier hit a home run into the right field pavilion, scoring Williams ahead of him. A double, single, sacrifice hit and Snyder's error produced two more in the seventh and proved the undoing of Doak.

Brotherly Love. Fearing he might send his younger brother back to the minors, Harry Coveleskie of the Detroit Tigers, refused to pitch today against Stanley Coveleskie, a recruit of the Indians. Managers Jennings and Fohl had billed the two for yesterday's game as a drawing card. Stanley worked against the Tigers and was beaten by Cunningham in a twelve inning duel, 3 to 1. "No, I won't," Harry said, "I've made good in the big league and the kid has his place to make. I know I would be holding back if I went against him. I couldn't put my heart into an effort that might send him back to the bushes."

Stanley struck out Cobb in the first inning and Harry congratulated him as he walked to the bench. The Indian pitcher pitched great ball up to the twelfth, when Detroit punched him for two runs. He was given spectacular support. Speaker potted four hits for Cleveland.

And Johnson Too. Boston, Mass., April 18.—The Boston Americans today performed the rare feat of driving Walter Johnson from the slab in defeating Washington, 5 to 1. In the sixth inning Boston hammered the delivery of the Washington star for a double and four singles in a row, netting four runs. Ruth kept the visitors' eight hits well scattered, but in the eighth he passed the first two men up. After two very out Milan sent McBride across with a single for Washington's only score. The game was called at the end of the eighth on account of rain.

CAMPION COLLEGE WINS FROM THE BADGERS, 6 TO 1

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Prairie du Chien, Wis., April 18.—After beating Notre Dame twice, Germann institute and the Dubuque German college, the Wisconsin baseball team went down to defeat at the hands of Campion college, 6 to 1. The slug of Campion proved too much for Moon, the Badger twirler, while Freyman had his opponents guessing at all times. According to Coach Slim Lewis of Wisconsin Freyman is the best pitcher the Badgers have faced their spring trip. Freyman allowed but four hits and struck out eleven. Campion got eleven hits, Plantz leading with three. Freyman's pitching and Ruten's three bagger were the features.

Fleider Jones' doom as a manager is sealed. Hugh Fullerton in his forecast of the major league races has placed Jones as the best manager in major league ball today. The Browns looked bad enough and Jones was considered their only hope. Now even that chance is exploded by Fullerton's endorsement.

RIVALS AS CUBS TO RESUME FIGHT

Frank Chance (top) and Harry Wolverton.

Frank Chance and Harry Wolverton, who started their big league careers as rivals for honors on the Chicago Cubs many years ago, are now rivals again. Wolverton is manager of the San Francisco Seals in the Pacific Coast league, while Chance is manager of the Los Angeles Angels.

MORRIS MILLER

Manager Callahan of the Pirates says he will carry two southpaws this year. Kautlechner will be one. The other southpaw berth rests between Cooper and Moran, and as Cooper has been in bad physical shape this spring the chances favor Moran, though he has not shown anything special to date. Adams, Hornan and Mamaux are sure among the right-handers. Miller and Hill probably will be retained.

Bill James has doctored his arm so much that the Boston players think it has been over-treated. Just now Stallings is working James out very carefully. Bill has been allowed to get up steam, and of course, has had a slightly lame arm in consequence, but all other treatment, seemingly having failed, Stallings is going back to the old idea of having James work until he gets the kinks out—if it can be done.

The New York Nationals will pay part of Jim Thorpe's salary while he plays with the Milwaukee team this year. This is the last year that the

HIS TEAM READY TO PUT UP HARD FIGHT

Bill Donovan.

According to baseball statisticians the outlook for the Yankees in the coming season is the most encouraging since the American league team was established in New York. If the talent which has been added to the club comes up to expectations, Bill Donovan's team should figure in the pennant race prominently.

contract John McGraw signed with Thorpe will make good in the Association as he did in the International last year. He turned the Indians into a left-handed batter this spring and with his speed in going to first this should help some in getting on.

The Beaumont club of the Texas league thought it was signing a pitcher named May, who had played with Macon in the South Atlantic league. A player reported and showed nothing. Manager Jim Delahanty put him on the grill and he confessed he wasn't May, or not the May expected, at any rate. The can was immediately attached. Whether the real May was in on the deal or not does not appear.

Listen to Johnny Evers. He says he feels more like playing ball now than he ever did in his life. John believes the Braves are a better team than ever, too. He says the infield is working well and that Ed Koney, despite reports to the contrary, is quick witted enough to grasp any situation that comes up.

The Detroit club has turned Pitcher Red O'Brien over to San Francisco on an optional agreement. O'Brien, after being recalled from Buffalo last fall looked like a world beater, but somehow or other Hugh Jennings never seems to get results out of young pitchers, however good they may look. He admits it, too.

Bill Donovan has not yet decided whether or not he will retain three southpaws during the coming season. The work of Slim Love between now and May 15 will have much to do with settling Donovan's mind on the question. Morridge and Culp are certain, and Love has given enough promise to make his retention not improbable.

Charley Weegman has something else to worry about. A woman in Chicago who says she was hurt in one of the Chicago magnate's movie shows has sued him for $10,000. She probably heard he had incorporated the Cubs for a million and thought Weegman had coin to spare.

Waivers having been granted by all clubs in the major leagues on Otto Knebe, the Phillies have given him his unconditional release, that he may be free to land a job. He is said to have several offers from the higher class minors.

They used to say that Branch Rickey was a great baseball genius, but that the case was hopeless because his scientific stuff was too deep for the Browns. Now one St. Louis writer says that the theories of Fleider Jones seem more than his players can grasp and that it will be a long fight to get it in their heads. That team should be turned over to John McGraw, whose theory of inside ball is to hit and keep running until you are thrown out or score.

THE NEXT STEP.

Be the noblest man that your present faith, poor and weak and imperfect as it is, can make you be. Live up to your present growth, your present faith. So, and so only, do you take the next straight step forward, as you stand strong where you are now. So only can you think the curtain will be drawn back and there will be revealed to you what lies beyond.—Phillips Brooks.

ASSOCIATION OPENS ITS SEASON TODAY

Fair Weather Marks Start of League's Schedule With All Games Played in Southeastern Section.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago, April 18.—Fair weather marked the opening today of the American Association season for 1916, with all the teams in action in the southeastern end of the Association's territory.

Special interest is attached to opening day at Toledo, where the Cleveland franchise has been placed this year, after a two years stay in the latter city. With Roger Bresnahan, formerly leader of the Chicago Nationals, at the head of the team, Toledo fans look for a successful season and are starting it with an appropriate celebration.

The Bird's Tail.

In his "Story of the Birds" James Newton Baskett says: To a slight extent in some birds the tail may be used as a rudder, but where the wing is perfected turning is effected with a very scant tail. The use of the tail always has more reference to the up and down movements than to the lateral. It comes into play in alighting (as a brake) or in rising (as a kite-like surface) and is used dexterously by the soaring birds in balancing themselves against varying currents of air.

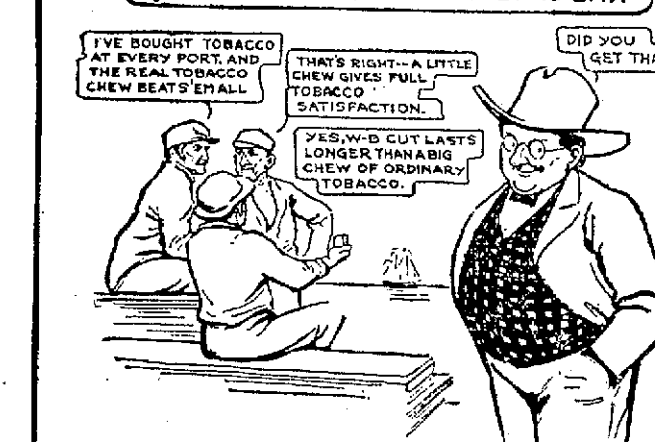

Appropriate Styles.

"That eloquentist believes in dressing the part for any recitation."

"How do you mean?"

"Why, when she read the story about the sailors deserted on the lonely island she wore a costume of maroon, and at her lecture on Celtic wit her dress was all trimmed up with Irish point."—Exchange.

LISTEN TO WHAT THE SAILORS SAY.

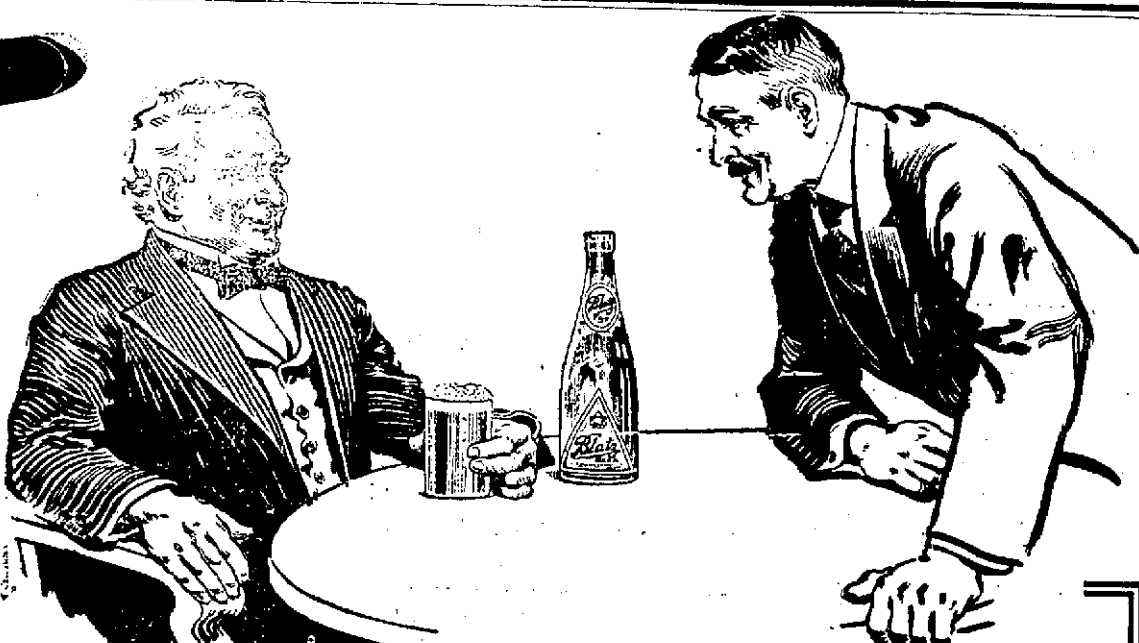

SAILORS are not the only critical judges of chewing tobacco.

Real tobacco satisfaction didn't hit some men until they heard of W-B CUT Chewing—the long shred Real Tobacco Chew—and now it's nothing but W-B CUT Chewing for them.

Give W-B CUT Chewing a quality test yourself. Take a small chew—and notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.

Adieu, Corn Exchange Fount. City Monument Follows Old Town Pump to Discard Heap

Remember the old town pump, that big, blackened iron veteran with the six-foot crowbar handle that used to grace, for a number of years, the corner of the Corn Exchange? You can't forget the thing, with its twisted wire hook that held the rusty tin drinking cup. But both have passed to oblivion, to be but a meager epoch in the onward trend of progress and civilization—sanitation. For years the old pump was busy, creating and pumping every day its quenchings of thousands of throats.

But the old town pump is gone and with it is passing its faithful old friend, the Corn Exchange fountain. It is going to make way for a flower bed, and eventually the flower bed will make way for a public comfort station, one of convenience and beauty and a civic source of pride, standing in the most prominent center of the city.

You never realized what an ugly old wreck that once beautiful piece of city ornament was, did you? But you will now, though, in the summer time when the little plot boasts a big flower bed in its center, and the green grass growing all round; and then in the winter time when the wooden wigwam, which sheltered it from storms, is placed in position no more.

Funny how a little change will make a difference, isn't it? It did look pretty, a snow-crystalized white cone when the community Christmas tree was up during holiday time. But then, Nature is an artist, you know; but Nature never had anything to do with decorating the Corn Exchange, at least insofar as this artificial geyser was concerned.

It all falls back to the old city council, that Old City Council So Dear to My Childhood, as the anti-recallists sing. Corn Exchange fountain has a history—not one steeped in blood but in boiling hot water—and cold, for that matter, for at least five or six years after its erection and when the old-timers from the Fourth ward happened to pass it while "Up Town" as they in old Fox Hall continue to say.

Over the shattered remains of the dilapidated structure yesterday morning, as city workmen were demolishing it, J. P. Baker, whose vote put the fountain there and roused the ire of the Fourth ward and old Fox Hall to run riot and make the fountain's water "hile," told the story.

Away back in 1888, the same year the contract for the water works was let, the common council stipulated in its contract with the water company that this latter body was to furnish free the water for two fountains, their location being subject to the will of the council. The court house park got one of the fountains. The Fourth ward park, then a common, at this time, 1888, was voted the other.

A year passed and new faces graced the council room at the city hall. After much deliberation the newly elected council decided that the Fourth ward had enough water in the river, and as a result of this decision rescinded the action of their predecessors in office and voted that the second fount be placed at the Corn Exchange.

The three-cornered plot still known as the Corn Exchange, even at that time being called the same as now, owed its origin to its being the public market place. For miles around farmers came to town with their garden truck, hay, corn and grains, horses pigs and cattle, and cordwood, market and trade to Janesville people. It was a dirty, ill-smelling hay and rotten vegetable-breathen plot, an eyesore then as even now the river banks in the business district are commonly termed.

A couple of old, shabby and weather-beaten lean-to shacks of rough hewn lumber added not to the beauty of the corner. Even at that time the town was a roustabout and bawled here in the, balmy warm breezes and bright sunshine of every month of the year.

And it was to obliterate this festering civic eyesore that the council voted to locate the fountain there. But it was not placed without opposition. First this came among the council members. The Fourth warders put up a holler that could be heard from the north and from the Yankee Settlement (out Pleasant street, the brickyard way) on the west, to Black Hawk on the east.

Far be it from them to let any council take away their park fountain without a tussle.

Well, the agitation started by the residents of Fox Hall spread into the council chambers. John Winans was mayor at that time. Called upon for a decision at their meeting, the vote was a tie. At that time J. P. Baker was a member of the council. He was also a member of the judiciary committee of the council, to which body all such matters were referred. Mr. Baker's vote was the one which decided the issue, the changing of the location of the fountain to the Corn Exchange. But he didn't have a friend in the Fourth ward after that.

And the trouble did not end there.

The late Randall Williams owned that string of buildings which still stand on the northwest angle of the plot. He served an injunction and afterwards brought suit against the city on the grounds that the fountain would obstruct the view from the houses and buildings, and also be a menace from a light standpoint.

The suit before it was finished was carried to the Wisconsin supreme court; first through the lower legal channels and then to the supreme court, plaintiff and defendant. The supreme court, however, favored the city in the decision, but with the stipulation that the city was to erect no structure or building that would cut off either ingress or egress or proper light to the Williams block.

While feeling ran high and all sorts of stories were rife against those councilmen who voted to change the location of the fountain, Mr. Baker yesterday related one in particular, one that made him the target.

Jim Conroy, a big, jovial Irishman, who was in the butcher business, a wag and a true exponent of Irish humor as circumstances came, presented or otherwise, circulated the story that Mr. Baker at a recent meeting of the council got up and made a speech. Among the remarks Conroy attributed to Baker were the following: "The Fourth ward didn't need the fountain, as they had the slaughter houses and the bend in the river."

The story gained wide circulation and for months afterwards Mr. Baker was constantly denying its authenticity.

Completed, with the stone coping around the edge of the terrace, the fountain cost the city about $2,500. During the last few years it has taken considerable money for its upkeep. Now it is being dismantled to make room for a flower plot. Later the flower plot will go and on the site Janesville will have its long needed and needed few comfort station, modern in every respect.

At the present time the sum of fifteen hundred dollars has been raised. The present commissioners are unanimous in the belief that if a structure is erected here it must be one entailing substantialness, convenience, lines of beauty and in the whole a monument and emblem of civic pride—in fact a public building to warrant a second look of increasing satisfaction from the stranger and a civic accomplishment for generations to come to look back upon as the important problems to be met as time flights past.

ENGLISH ADMIRAL GOT EXCITED WHEN THE KING WALKED IN AT PARTY.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, April 18.—Admiral Lord Charles Beresford is the butt of considerable chaff just now over an incident which occurred at the tea party tendered by the King and Queen to wounded soldiers at Buckingham Palace.

Lord Charles was present to aid the naval table tea pouring. He is quite absentminded.

While Lord Beresford was in the act of pouring tea for an invalid "jackie," their Majesties suddenly and unostentatiously entered.

Lord Charles, resplendent in his Admiral's uniform, hastily tucked the tea pot under his arm and stood at rigid salute.

Meantime the hot tea, naturally, trickled floorward via Lord Charles' trouser leg.

Certain "jackies" laughed, but Lord Charles didn't.

NORTHERN COMMERCIAL CLUBS SEEK TO HAVE LINE TO TWIN CITIES.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Ashland, Wis., April 18.—After a week's work the Federation of Commercial Clubs of Upper Wisconsin and Upper Michigan is confident that they will accomplish their purpose of inducing the Soo line to construct the Mellen cut-off which will give both Northern Wisconsin and Northern Michigan a direct line to the Twin cities.

The entire country from Chequamegon to the copper district is represented in the commercial clubs federation. Delegations from Bayfield, Ironwood, Wakefield, Drummond, Mason, Houghton, Hancock, Calumet, Westboro, Port Wing, and the Twin cities, attending the organization meeting a year ago.

SEND OUT WARNING ON CAR SHORTAGE

State Railroad Commission Asks Cooperation of Railroads and Shippers to Obviate Situation.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 18.—To avoid a car shortage and to do all possible to obviate such conditions, the railroad commission today issued a circular to be sent to all railroads and shippers asking them to co-operate.

The circular reads:

"In view of the serious shortage of cars, particularly box cars, existing throughout the country in general, including the state of Wisconsin where conditions appear to be growing more and more acute, the commission desires to direct the attention of railroads and shippers to the necessity of individual and co-operative action to the end that each and every car may be made to give the greatest possible service. As the shortage of cars is a matter of vital importance to railroads, shippers and the general public, everyone should make an effort to aid in relieving the situation. There are many opportunities for doing this which, no doubt, are well known to those directly interested."

The commission then advises the railroads to perform all switching services promptly. It gives methods for handling cars at terminals so as to avoid delays.

"Shippers should load and unload all cars without unnecessary delay," continues the commission's letter, "regardless of free time allowance or demurrage charges, and furnish billing to the railroads as soon as possible after the cars are ready to move. They should attempt wherever possible to load up to the maximum carrying capacity all cars furnished without regard to minimum weights or size of car wanted."

"In connection with this last suggestion it may be stated that the result of a recent investigation called to the attention of the commission shows that out of a total of 103 cars of various commodities shipped from points in Wisconsin, seventy-eight cars loaded to capacity would have been sufficient to supply the demand. There was, therefore, loss of the services of twenty-four cars due to light loading."

The Gazette wants 500 pounds of clean wiping rags at once. 3½¢ per pound for clean cloths free from buttons and hooks.

BELIEVE EIGHT HOUR SYSTEM TO BE ADOPTED IN THE PAPER MILLS

Green Bay, Wis., April 18.—That the eight-hour system will be adopted in paper mills made all over the country within a short time if the present demand for their product keeps up, is the belief of A. B. Coffin, superintendent of the Northern Paper Mills of Green Bay.

The Northern Mills adopted the eight-hour shift on January 1, 1915. Practically all of the paper mills in the Fox river valley announced recently that they would run three shifts a day instead of two as formerly. Business which the paper mills in northern Wisconsin are doing now is the largest in their history, according to Mr. Coffin.
